The most essential characteristic of a master is his power of inspiration. He is to kindle his disciple's fire as a bonfire, not a flame. It is this capacity in the highest degree we find in such of the masters as Jesus, Buddha, and Socrates. It was no whit the said nor the non-said they had; it was their freedom, their spiritual and mental magnetism.

In every department of human interest you will find that certain superior spirits have attained mastery—effortless—their has been the way they sought, or better, their inheritance; but they all flow in the evergreen

The first reading of James' new bill was in the House on Monday, June 11. The bill runs for five years, and is now in the hands of the committee on Education. It has been said that it will be a very important step in the new law, which has been very important in the past. It is a bill to amend the law relating to the education of the children of the poor, and to provide for the education of the children of the poor. All men are alike. The gods use a microscope to tell them apart. All men are different. They are divided by mountains and gulfs of wealth and poverty, fame and shame, success and failure. And it is precisely the microscopic variations in men which are responsible for the tremendous differences in their achievement.

tired and is satisfied that he has done a fair day's work. Young Brown puts in an extra lick and adds 5 per cent o his 80. That little 5 per cent is all the difference between him and the o hers. Yet it sticks up like a haystack on the Kansas prairie. It is the consp'cuous inch on the end of Brown's nose when the boss starts to look over the office force.

In any competitive business, as Mr. James J. Jeffries will, doubtless, gladly testify, it is only the last lick which counts. Brown and you may hammer each other into a condition of equal insensibility and accomplish nothing by all that exertion. But when Brown, rallying his last ounce of strength, slips over the final uppercut, he wins thereby the fight, the purse, and the championship belt.

Psychologists say that as a mental and little better—that in every man there is a great untapped and unused reservoir of energy. The great man is great because he has found out how to make the proper connection with this source of power. All men ARE created equal—only some men have learned how to cut off the driving belts.

The classic example of the average man, with his clutch permanently thrown into the high speed, is T. R. The former president is fond of declaring that he is, after all, just an average specimen of the human race. Yet no heaven-born genius was ever more active or more conspicuous in a dozen different ways. Probably every man has known at one time or another what it means to "catch his second wind." He is running, perhaps, and after a period of almost utter exhaustion and fatigue, he suddenly finds his stride lengthened, his breath coming easily, and all symptoms of distress gone. By simply holding on he has tapped his reservoir of reserve power. No road is too long for him now. Or he is at work on a hard mental task. He finds it almost impossible to concentrate his mind; his head aches; he is ready to give up. Again and suddenly he feels mentally refreshed. The difficulties become pleasures. He loses all sense of the passage of time. He, too, has got into gear with something like the Infinite.

This is the age of the Average Man. The lesson it teaches is that in every average man of us all lies the possibility of greatness!

Contrariness Flv in Ointment
Put the worst thing you can do to drama ze in real life. Every day existence would be "reasonably agreeable" if we did not constantly exult in "publication." There are vast sweeps of joy in nature, reality is usually sweet. It is too sweet we have a spoil for sheer contrariness.

Happiness is a Welcome Visitor

When happiness comes to a door and says, "Come in, Glad to see you all over and see as long as you can. That is better than anything. Now I wrote in The last time you watch her. Calamus will not let you can find the door. You always have something to do."

We do not need a plan for happiness so much as sense to appreciate what we have. The world is full of philosophies and religions and doctrines to instruct us how to live. We are told that we must be good, trying a new medicine or a new faith to see if we cannot become a better person. But we already own a face. For we are happy most of the time. We are not happy as if it were a place where we could find a cheese in the mouse trap of desire.

There are no great enemies to present enjoyment today we might say full of primal waves on which this lever through the world today stand crucified between two thieves tomorrow and yesterday

Remorse Born of Yesterday
 Out of vests day came remorse and regret,
 One of memory rise the fulmista to obscure today's day, I thought have been a hint, fog I was, I was, I was did it ever happen Now the one kind thing about a past that it is not in it is there and not here And that is the one thing which we forget
 On second thought there is another good thing about which is that a good mistake or a good is just as useful as a medal in which to erect a statue is a past pleasure could have been written for
 I am proud that what I feel both ways is the joy of a brilliant way of remembrance that's

Sorrow a crown o' sorrow
Is remembrance of happier days"

It ought also to be true that joy is a crown of joy is men being worse days.

The chief thing is Remon's. From there come apprehension, forbidding and all that pestiferous crowd of mental pain. But what the two? If calamity is coming we will be all the better prepared to meet it if we have accepted our nerve to joy today than if we have worn ourselves out "figging" the shadows of the approaching monster.

Today the Priceless Gift
Today is a priceless gift. It is all that I mine. I came baptised with the blood and consecrated with the rise clouds of dawn. It spreads its banner of glory. We've long hours in the day and at night it fades into starry splendor in sunset hues more gorgeous than those of dawnbreak. It's heaven in its jewels of all living creatures. It's required of me only to take it.

My mother once had a hired girl whom she told one afternoon sitting by the kitchen fire to pick up and wipe her sleeves with her apron.

"What's the matter, Mary?" asked the mother.

"O I dunno. I was just sitt'n here a thinkin'."

"What were you thinkin' of to make you cry?"

"O I dunno. I got my work all done and I the kitchen all riddled up you know and I just set down here and I didn't have nothin' else to do and I got to thinkin'

No Wonder She Wept

But what about?
Oh I guess I just was thinkin' what

If I was married and what if I had a little baby or what if I took the little baby down clear with me to get some molasses and what if I set the little baby down on the floor and went around to draw the molasses out of the barrel and what if there was a big ham Penguin up right over the little baby and what if the string broke and the ham fell down and killed—the little-baby

Today
This little strip of light
I live and all right
Let me keep bright.
Today
And let no fumes of yesterday
Nestle in the crevices of tomorrow
Believe in tomorrow
Today
I take the gift of heaven
As sure as the given
And so tomorrow shall be and
Or never comes at all I've had
At least
Today!

For business men would stop to consider the beneficial effect of this system on his business unless he had previously come in contact with it. Yet dozens of merchants with every prospect for getting on in the world have been forced to stop at the race track because they refused to bet, or have left because they permitted others to make them bet by libelous, leading articles.

[illegible]

Constant Menace to Business

For the merchant the thief is a poison well worth his best thoughts. It is men always and death to business. It is not only dangerous to the pocket, it is a deadly and general menace to the life of the community. It is a constant drain on the lives of business men, for the patronage is the life of a store. When some merchants the day is lost, it is not the result of a single act of larceny, but of a series of small pilferages, until the margin is so small that even in these cases they do not know where the proprietors were taken.

Big Problem of Lifetime

There was a business man of prominent family who allowed the loaning practice to continue to such an extent that a business which netted him a profit of $100,000 a year it was if that was not the only result, a family of 10 dependent upon him was in the dire straits of poverty. At the end of his life he was up to the eyes in debt and he found it was his business which had overruled all other considerations for well-being and money was enough to turn his life around.

When a business began to fail in the 1930s, the women who depended on it often found themselves in a state of desperation. Some of them turned to the streets for relief, and some of them turned to the law. In the case of the women who turned to the law, the courts often found them guilty of the same crime as the men who had run the business. The women who

Ferris Hartman can most properly be called a comedienne. He comes to us this afternoon at the Macdonough theatre. His welcome will be a hearty one for the festive spirit is in the air. He is a young man, but his performance is full of fantasy and should secure him a triumph.

Hartman is a fresh, young, highly successful comedian in San Francisco and Los Angeles. His comedy is particularly strong in the fact that he has been acclaimed by critics as being the most capable with which he has been a comedienne.

It is not a case she has no light, not the attention Miss Waters has been with the chorus girls in a special way. Let for nearly six years since she first found a place with one of the girls in a show that he put in at the St. Louis variety fair. She started a few weeks after three months there she was made out of the front row. At this time she was just 11, from this she went to New York and sang and danced on the stage. Her father was one of the first of the Hippodrome. As it turned out, but it was not a success. After six years there and as he was in a bad way for her runs she went further looking for a job. DANNY IS ABOUT TO HAVE HIS VACATION HE IMAGINES IT THIS WAY—

BUT! ISN'T IT ALWAYS THE WAY!? HERE IS WHAT REALLY HAPPENED—

ZEKE SMART POLITELY PASSES THE HANDLE TO THE COW

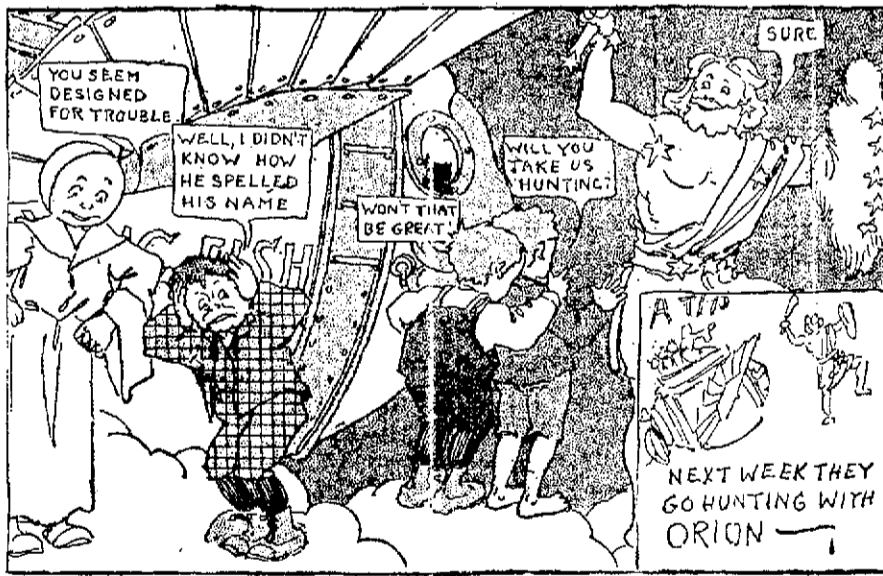

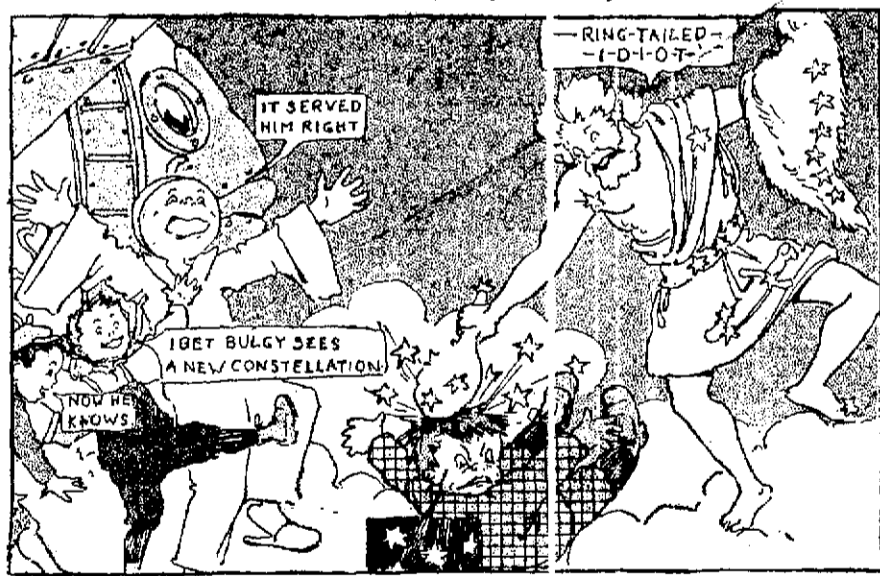

THE BIRD BOYS AND THEIR AIRSHIP, THE FLYING FISH.

The airship nears Orion—as "O'Ryan" is pronounced. It seems that on a trophy new the hunter just has pounced. The Moon man greets him warmly, for they are long standing chums. So to a halt the flying craft now shivers, shakes, and hums.

"What kind of skin is that?" he asked, and pleasantly replies: "It's from a ring-tailed idiot." This causes much surprise. Then Bulgy asks his name again and softly he is told. His manner toward the hunter is, to say the least, quite bold.

He hustles to the fore as if he owned the cloudy tract. The Bird Boys apprehend that he improperly will act. Forebodings are fulfilled when Bulgy beards the stellar lion. By recklessly addressing him, beginning, "Say, O'Brien."

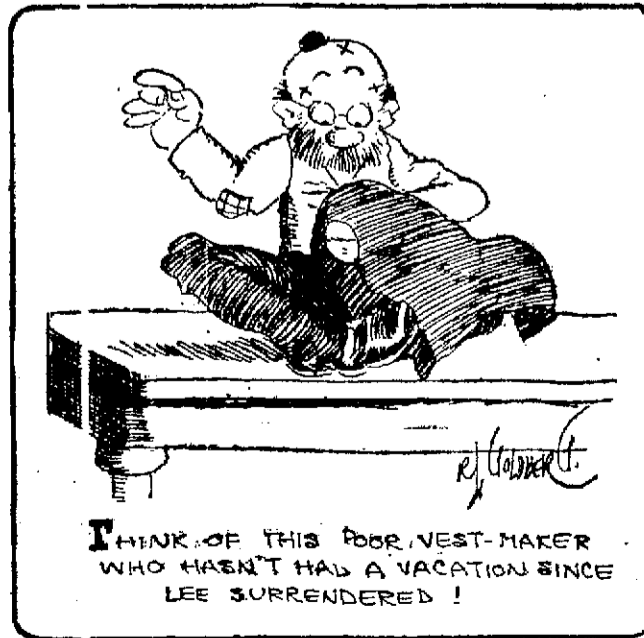

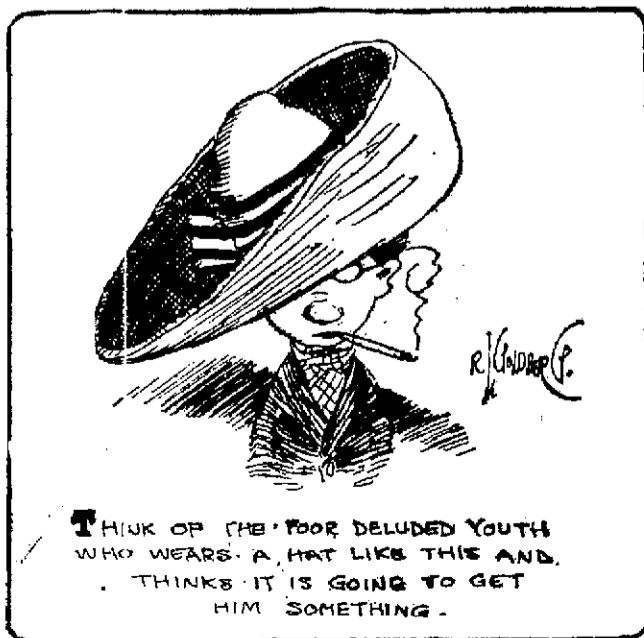

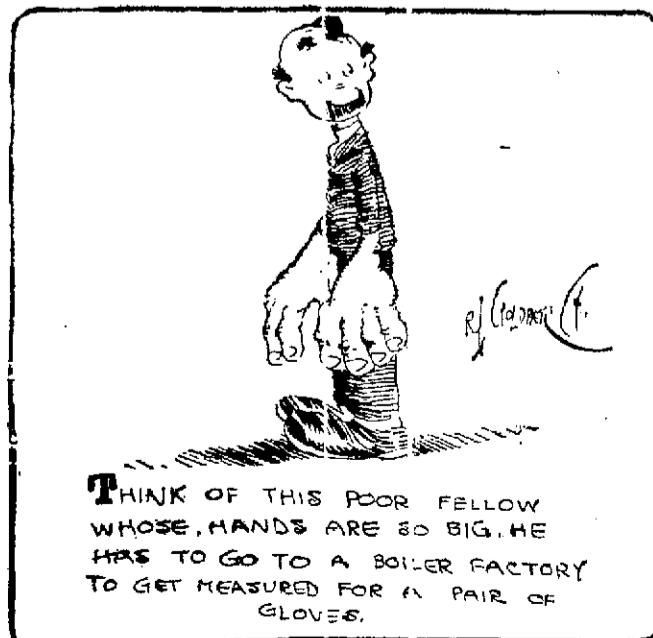

The hunter huge corrects him in a thunderous reply. This answer rips the heavens, knocking loose the starry sky. Still Bulgy doesn't take the hint, but heedlessly insists. On calling him "O'Brien" and new bravado colists.

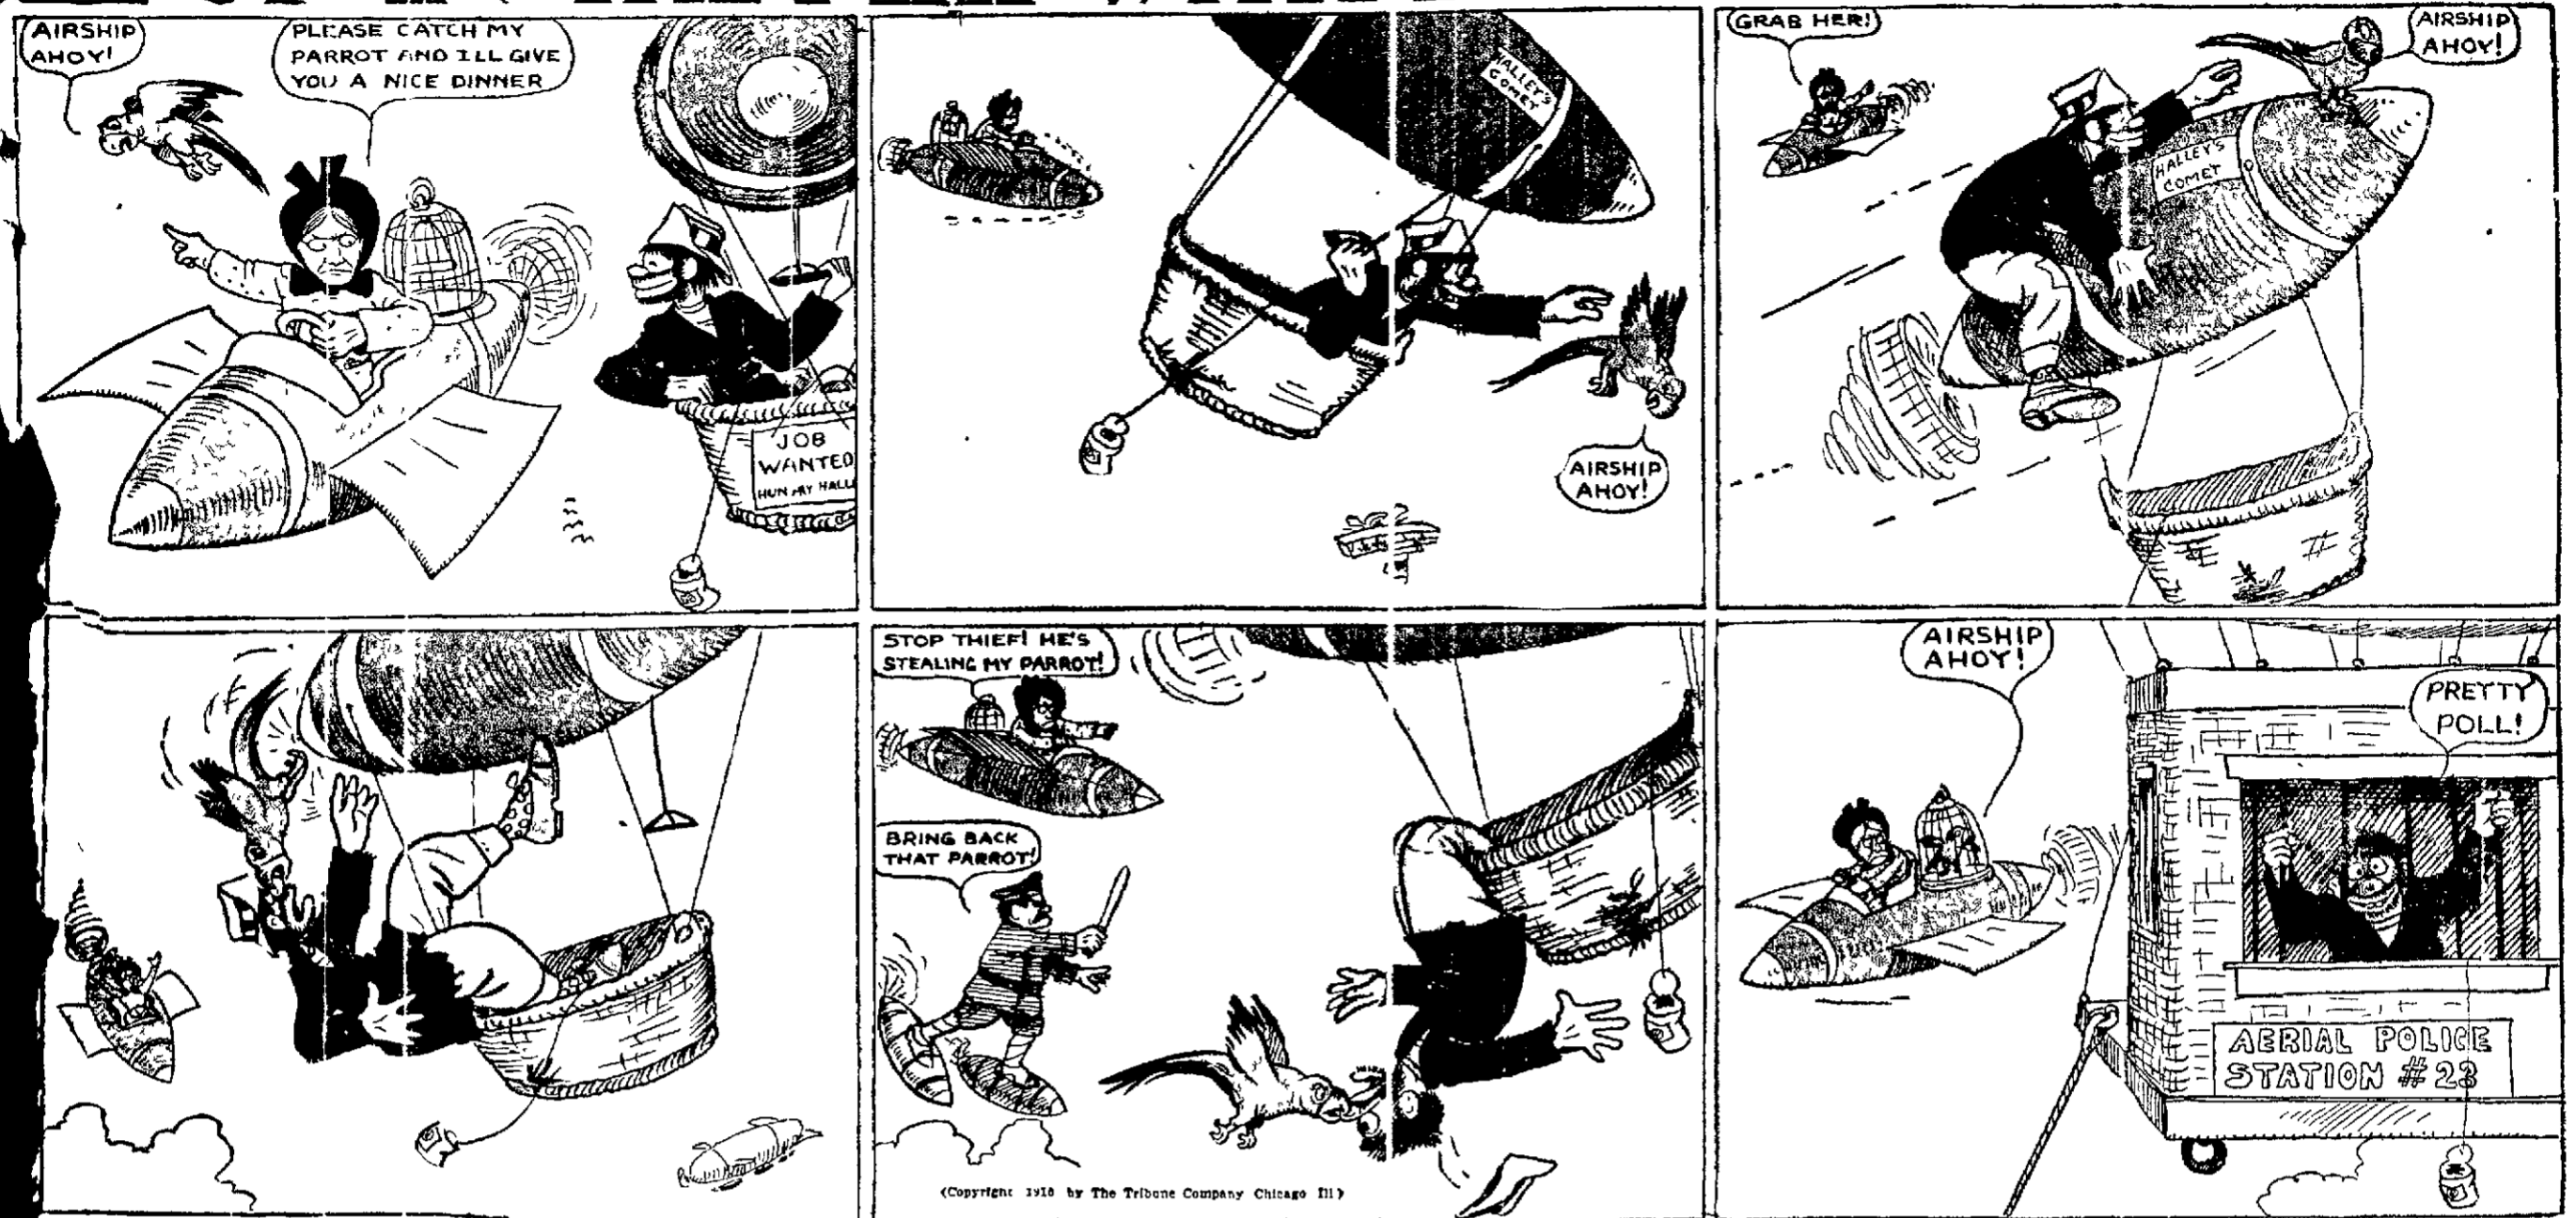

Orion's club is thick and hard, as Bulgy quickly learns. It is the stiff rejoinder which the hunter now returns. More stars than are in heaven flit before the dizzy view Of Bulgy, who regrets that he had been so fresh and "new."

The hunter's heart is not so bad. He promises the boys. That is, young Budd and Bill, that he will show them hunting joys. He promises to take them on a carefree stellar chase. For beasts that lurk in cloudland and which beat the airship's pace.

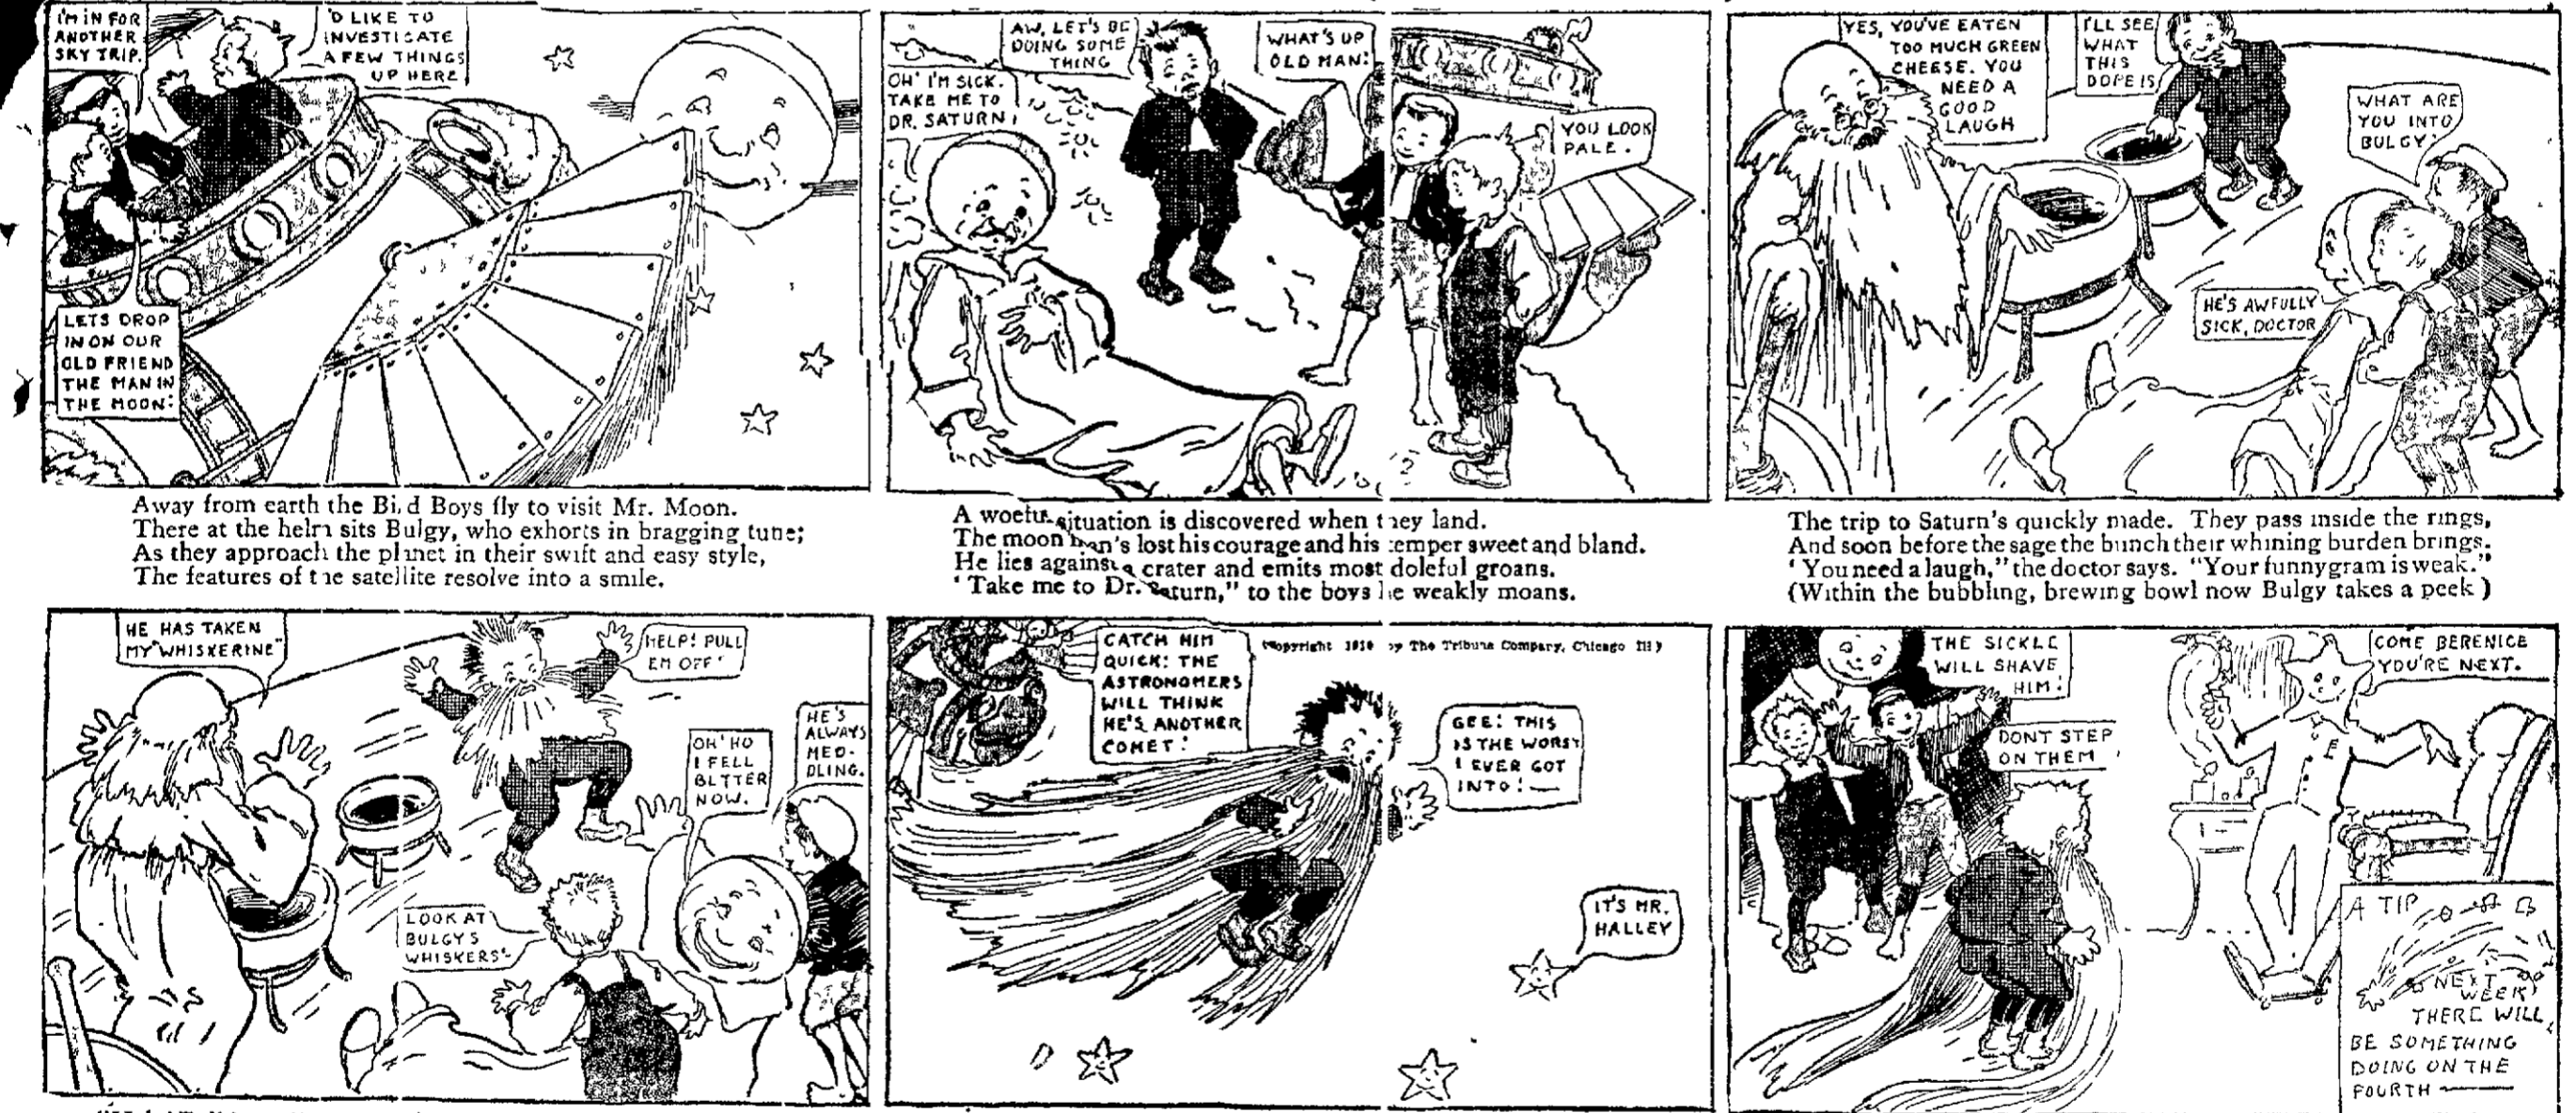

WHAT ARE YOU KICKING ABOUT?

UP IN THE AIR WITH HUNGRY HALLEY

THE BIRD BOYS AND THEIR AIRSHIP, THE FLYING FISH.

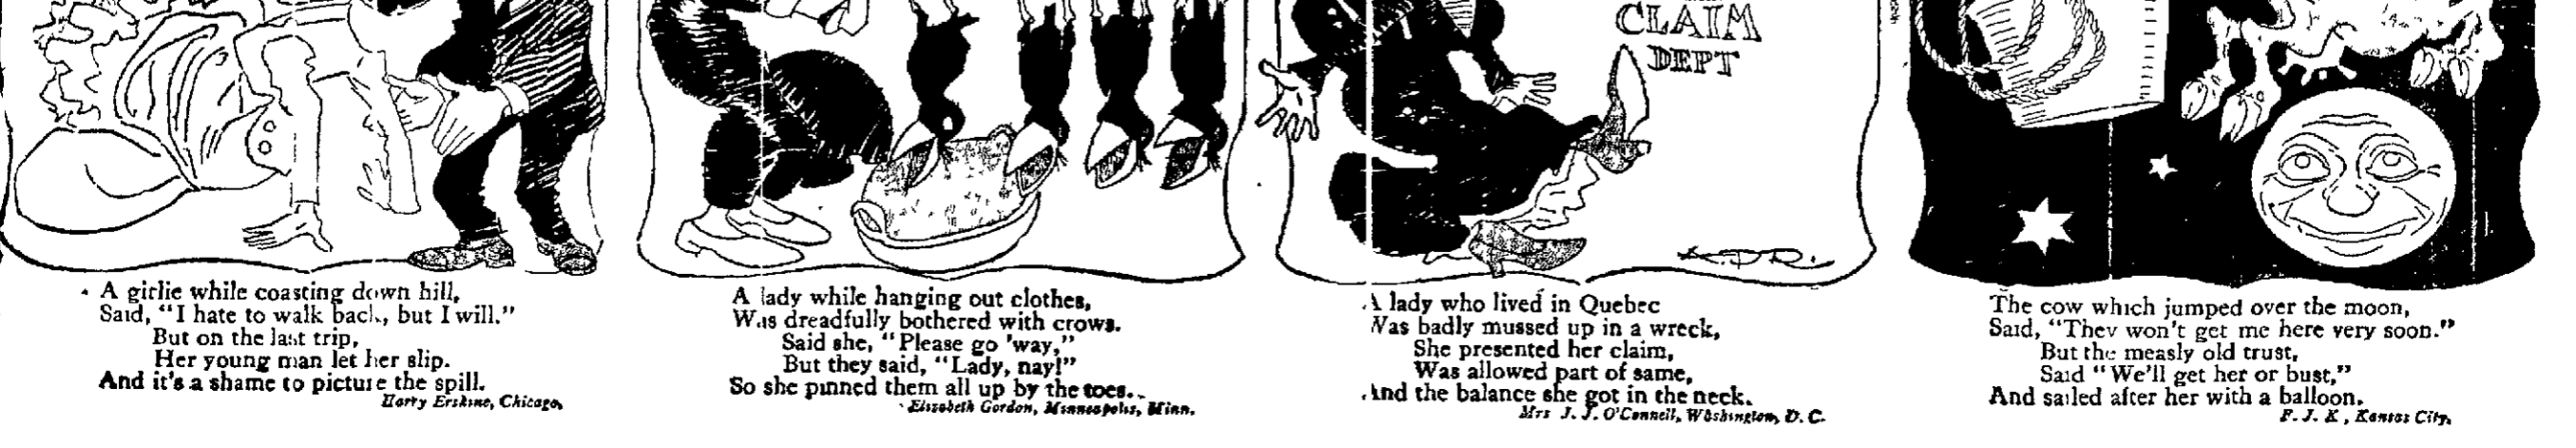

“Help! Pull ‘em off!” soon Bulgy cries and wrenches at his face. As if by magic on his chin a change has taken place. He’s just a mass of whiskers—they’re the queerest ever seen. “My word!” cries Dr. Saturn, “he’s dipped into ‘Whiskerine!’”

Quite heedless in his frenzy Bulgy jumps off into space. Behind him speeds the airship. For a time it is a race. The Bird Boys wish to save him ere to earth the lad can slope. A comet he’ll be branded by the oglin’ telescope.

At last he’s caught and overpowered despite his protests loud. They catch him as his whiskers are about to sweep a cloud. He’s taken to the “Sickle”—is the stellar barber shop. The artist is not gentle but he reaps the heavy crop.

FOOLISH LIMERICKS NOW AND THEN ARE RELISHED BY THE BEST OF MEN.

A girlie while coasting down hill,
Said, “I hate to walk back, but I will.”
But on the last trip,
Her young man let her slip.
And it’s a shame to picture the spill.

A lady while hanging out clothes,
Was dreadfully bothered with crows.
Said she, “Please go ‘way.”
But they said, “Lady, nay!”
So she punned them all up by the toes.
—Elizabeth Gordon, Minneapolis, Minn.

A lady who lived in Quebec
Was badly mussed up in a wreck,
She presented her claim,
Was allowed part of same,
And the balance she got in the neck.
—Mrs. J. J. O’Connell, Washington, D. C.

The cow which jumped over the moon,
Said, “They won’t get me here very soon.”
But the measly old trust,
Said “We’ll get her or bust,”
And sailed after her with a balloon.
—F. J. K., Kansas City.

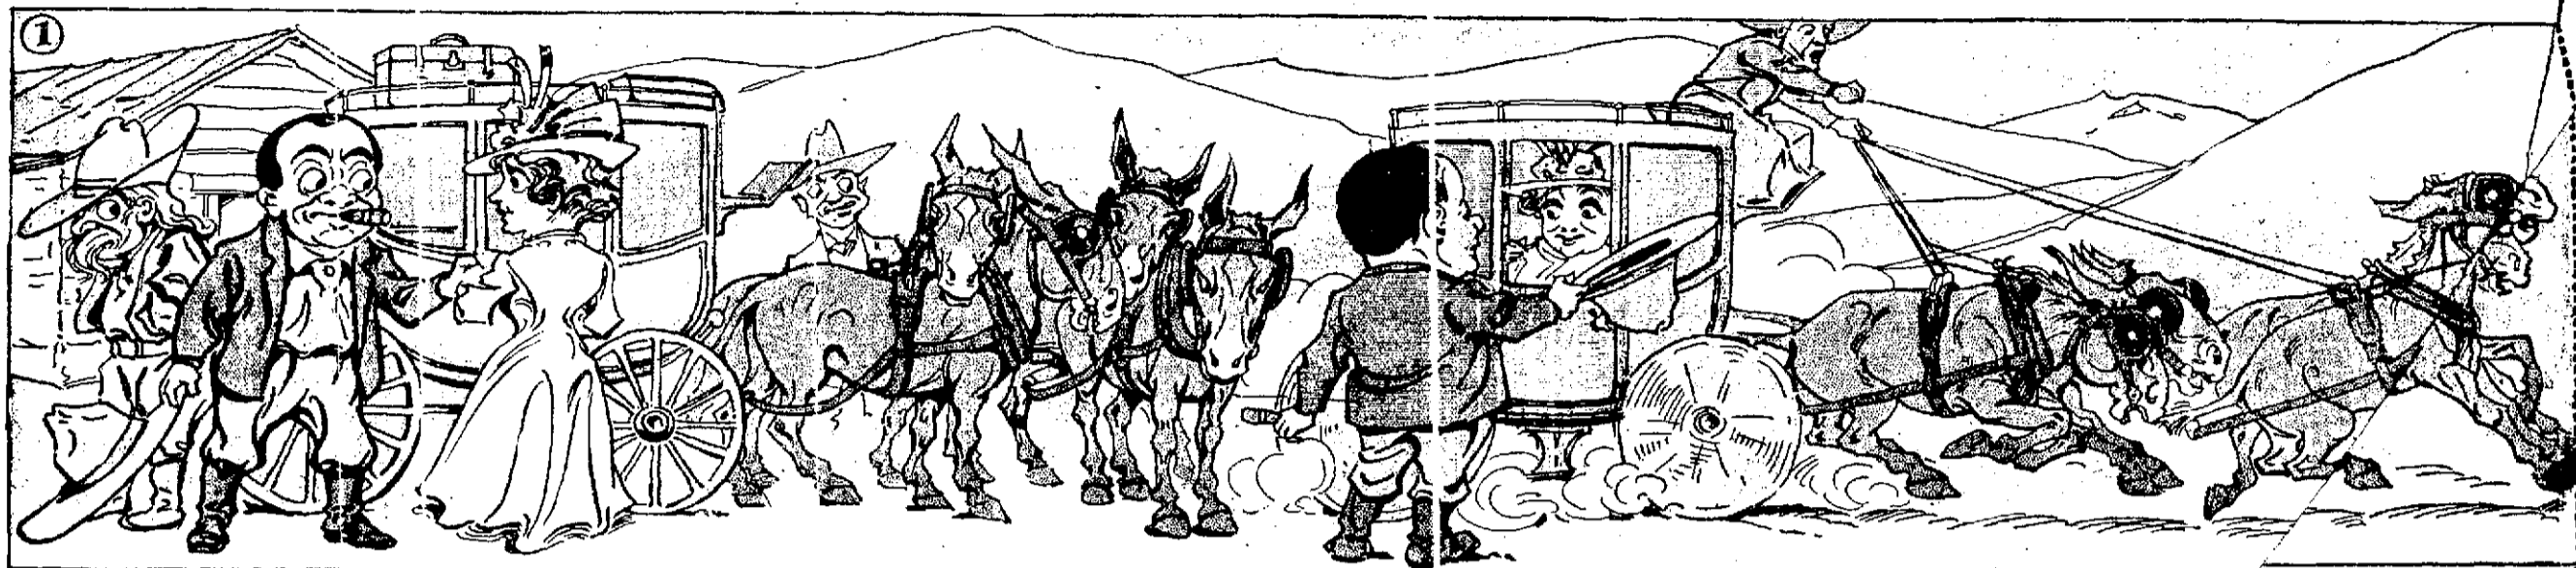

It's all right to play wild west as we're doing now, but for the real article in wild west thrillers nothing could equal some of the things I did when I lived out in the Rockies. Single handed I have captured large bands of desperate characters. The life has a charm of its own, and Buffalo Bill, Kit Carson and the rest of those old frontier boys never knew what real excitement was. One day I felt it in my bones that a kidnaping was afoot, and, while I hate to talk about myself, it panned out bad for the kidnapers.

To make a panorama the four strips may be pasted together at dotted lines in 1-2-3-4 order.

OLD OPIE DILLDOCK'S STORIES

(Copyright: 1910: by The Tribune Company, Chicago, Ill.)

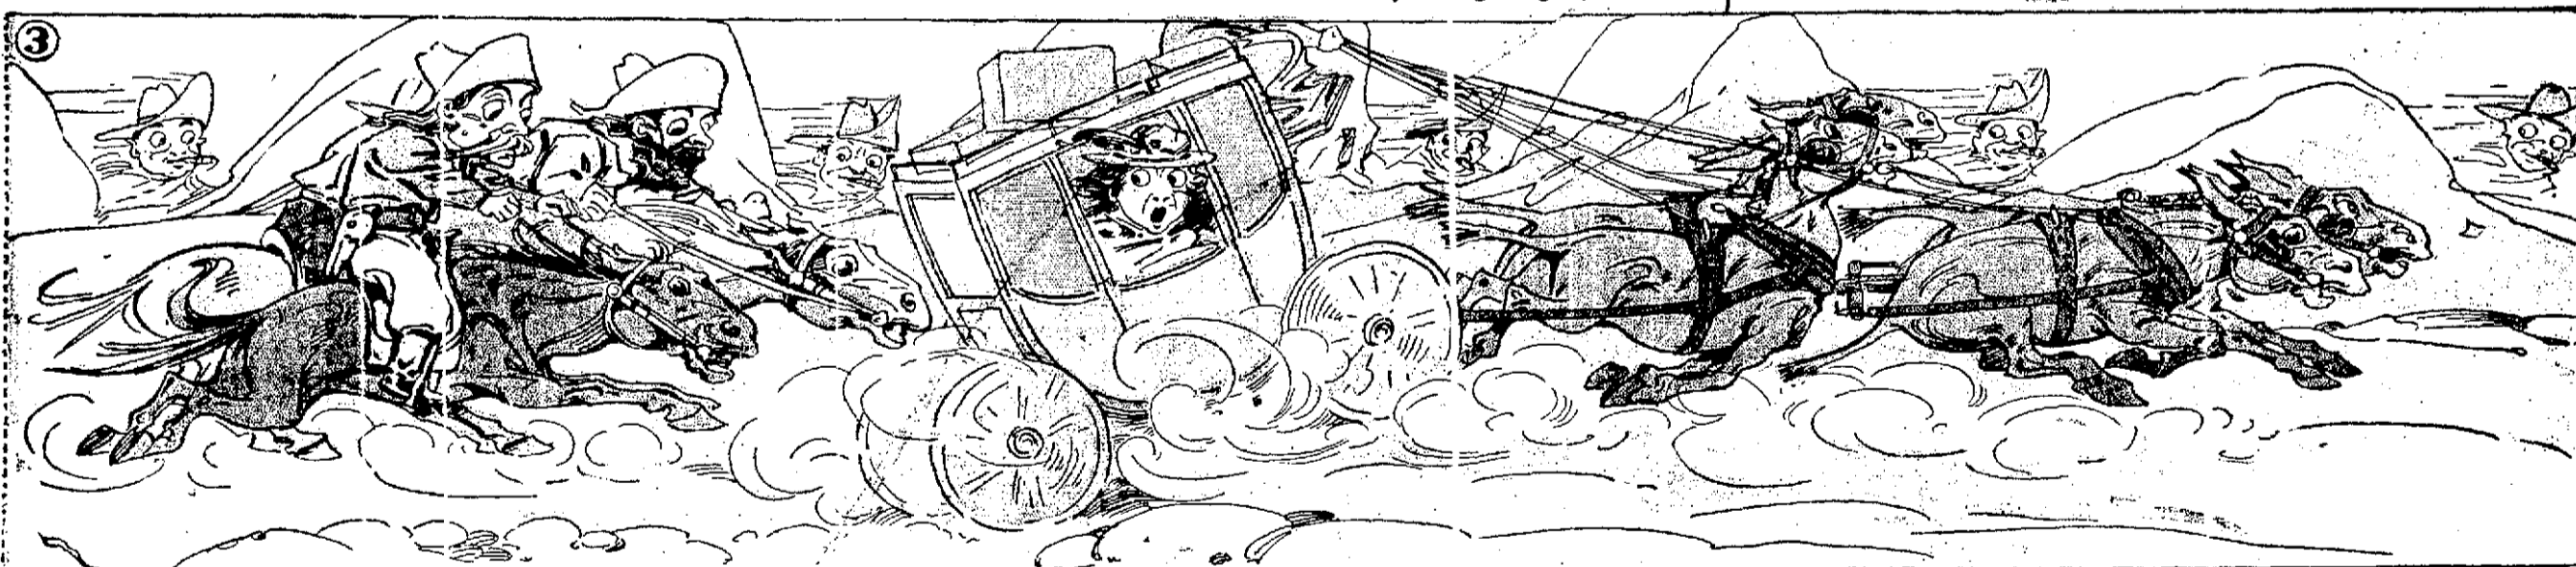

I knew that the charming and fascinating Miss Clara Stayart would leave Roaring Canyon Inn that day and I also knew that Thug Irving, who was greatly enamored of her, was planning to kidnap and carry her away to his retreat in the mountains. To thwart his evil purpose I made it a point to be on deck when she stepped trimly out to the coach. Behind the coach lurked Drowsy Dirk, the tool of Thug and his cutthroat band of mountain pirates.

With the grace of an old time knight, I lifted the slender and prim little lady into the coach, with one eye for her beauty and the other on Dirk to see what direction he might take when the coach departed for Pink Valley Center, a thriving little town where Miss Stayart was to meet her father. I whistled to Hitemup Ike, the driver, to keep his horses at topmost speed, and, doffing my hat and bowing gracefully, bid the fair creature bon voyage.

Hardly was she out of sight when Thug and his desperadoes appeared, digging their spurs into the sides of their panting mounts. I laughedardonically as I mounted my own trusty pony and got ahead of them in a roundabout way. I stood my horse behind a large rock in the shelter of which I also hid, and watched them as they rode by cursing and yelling like demons. Little did they know that the invincible Opie Dilldock soon would take a hand in their doings.

Down a steep slope Hitemup lashed his horses, the coach rocking like a cradle, the girl looking in great fright from the windows of the conveyance back upon the ruffians in her wake. I waited until I saw they would follow in the same direction as I then, putting my horse upon his feet, mounted and galloped off at right angles from the disappearing square of villians, thereby cutting in ahead of them when they hit the foot of the decline. They were gaining rapidly.

Fleet as they were, however, they had to travel some to make any appreciable gain on Hitemup, who had been through just such escapades before and knew how to get the most speed out of his horses. They were close upon the coach when I veered around and rode swiftly behind several huge boulders. Soon, I knew, we would come to an open space and here, I felt convinced, they would take a shot at Ike and compel him to halt. Then they would make off with the girl.

By this time I was riding like the wind behind the string of rocks which rose like pyramids at intervals. So fast was I going, indeed, that I seemed to be behind twenty rocks at once, peering through the spaces between them. "When we get in the open, my hearties," I said to myself, "you'll learn something you never dreamed of." So we flew on, Hitemup Ike urging his horses to their utmost, the ruffians roaring in the wake of the coach, and I riding serenely on.

As I rode I knotted my lariat and tied it in such a fashion that there were three huge loops in it. As we sped into the open country I galloped behind the trio of kidnapers, my horse's padded feet making no sound and giving no warning of my approach. With a dexterity that never has been matched I flung the lariat from me and as each of the three loops wrapped its coils about a victim, I brought my mount to a standstill, drew in the slack, and jerked the trio from their saddles.

Ter seconds later they were on the ground tied hand and foot. Ike swore he never had seen such a neat piece of work and asked me for a chew of terbacker. This I gave him—I carried it just for such an emergency, for I never use it myself—and then went forward and helped Miss Stayart to alight in front of the main hotel in Pink Valley Center. Thug promised to reform and I released him and his pals. The last I heard of him he was in the whole sale grocery business.

CLIMBS 6100 FEET IN AIR IN WRIGHT AIRSHIP

Young Brookins Breaks All Records for Altitude Flight at Resort

Descends in 7 Minutes With Motor Shut Off for Last 4200 Feet

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 9.—Soaring a mile and a sixth high above the ocean off the shores of the famous summer resort, Walter Brookins, the 21-year-old Dayton aviator, in his eagle-like biplane late this afternoon smashed all existing world's altitude flight records.

Gradually climbing upward in great three mile wide sweeps which carried him over the heart of Atlantic City as well as the ocean, he reached his highest altitude of 6100 feet in the phenomenal time of 56 minutes. He made his descent in seven minutes and at an altitude of 1200 feet shut off his motor and glided to earth like a bird.

When he landed he was obliged to fight his way through the crowds by physical force. The 150,000 people who witnessed the feat were simply wild with enthusiasm tonight and an immense crowd gathered in front of the Chalfont where the daring young aviator stops. He scarcely dares to venture out for fear of the strenuous reception which awaits him.

DAY AN IDEAL ONE
It was an ideal day for people who like to see a man do a feat. The sun was shining and the air was clear. The crowd was estimated at 150,000. The flight was a success in every way.

It was known that Brookins intended to make an effort to set the world's record for altitude. He was supposed to be the first man to reach 6000 feet.

Just as Brookins was making ready for his preliminary flight, Glenn H. Curtiss brought out his flyer. The two machines were lined up side by side. At 5:30 Brookins in his Wright biplane leaped into the air. Making wide turns over the ocean, he sailed upward.

CLIMBS GOES UP

Four minutes later Curtiss, plunging into the air and darted on a bit towards Ventnor. While Brookins was steadily flying in the opposite direction toward the inlet. Then Curtiss wheeled around and came flying in the direction of Brookins' course. When Curtiss completed his course the Wright flyer had started back in its descent of 6000 feet. Curtiss immediately took after him and while Brookins was passing over Ventnor he overtook him and darted sharply ahead through flying 1000 feet below.

At 5:50 Brookins was still flying. He was still climbing. He was still making wide turns over the ocean. He was still making wide sweeps which carried him over the heart of Atlantic City as well as the ocean.

HELEN GOULD IS TO REAR BROTHER'S CHILDREN

Frank J. Married Actress and Former Wife Is to Wed

TWO DAUGHTERS MAY INHERIT MUCH MONEY

Arrangement was Decided On at Family Council Last Week.

NEW YORK, July 9.—A conference of the Gould family held early this week when it was known that the family that Frank J. Gould would wed Thelma Kelly, the actress, and that Mrs. Gould would rear her two daughters, the late Ralph H. Thomas. It was decided that Miss Helen Miller Gould should have full charge of the two daughters of the couple, Helen and Margaret.

The children of this unfortunate man, it is announced, will not be reared by Miss Helen Gould, but they will receive the same care as the children of the late Mr. Gould. The arrangement was decided on at a family council last week.

TERMS OF DIVORCE
Under the terms of the divorce decree obtained by the late Mrs. Frank J. Gould, when she was divorced from him, she was to rear his two daughters, Helen and Margaret.

It is not doubted that the children will be reared by Mrs. Gould. The arrangement was decided on at a family council last week.

NEW YORK TO SEE FIGHT PICTURES FIRST

Mayor Gaynor Would Interfere, He Says, but He Cannot Under Laws

MANAGER NOT AFRAID OF LOSING PROFITS

New York Executive Wants to Know Who Autocrats Are.

NEW YORK, July 9.—The first public exhibition of the moving pictures of the heavyweight championship fight between Jeffries and Johnson will be made in this city Monday of next week. Mayor Gaynor today refused to prevent the showing of the film as here.

If I had my way I would stop the fight pictures, but it would be illegal and arbitrary for me to attempt to do that in my capacity as mayor of this city, said Mayor Gaynor today.

PROFIT IS DOUBT
Now that the pictures have been taken in the southern states and the fight is over, the profit is in doubt. The manager of the pictures is not sure of the profit.

WILL BE HER HEIRS
It is not doubted that the children will be reared by Mrs. Gould. The arrangement was decided on at a family council last week.

ISLAND FOR AID IS THE OFFER

Acceptance Would Mean War With United States

WASHINGTON, July 9.—The State Department gives great importance to a communication received today that Madriz has been in communication with a foreign power for the transfer to it of an island of Nicaragua in return for the foreign aid to his government.

JAPAN IS SUSPECTED

Madriz knows the facts and would not have made this offer to Germany or England. The offer is growing now that the matter has assumed importance by official consideration that the power is in the hands of the foreign aid to his government.

bride and the two Misses Helen and Margaret Gould the daughters who for the present will stop with their aunt Miss Helen M. Gould at Irvington in the Hudson.

LOU G AND WHAT FIN

The wedding of Frank Gould and Miss Helen Kelly six years ago was one of extreme youth and great merriment on each side. Neither was twenty and in none of the wealthy families. It was the youngest son of J. M. Gould and married the first

It was not a few years after the marriage when the daughters had seen both the reports of marital disaster and the divorce.

Since the divorce Mr. Gould has been engaged to several age beauties. He became attentive to Edith Kelly when that very pretty young girl was coming to the home of her mother in Havana on a musical comedy which appeared at the Casino.

Miss Kelly went to London to do some shopping at a young age. Soon after her return she was married to a man who is believed to own a race horse.

They have seen each other frequently since then and several times it has been reported they were married.

INTREPID YOUNG AVIATOR ACHIEVES A GREAT FEAT

Walter Brookins Flies 6100 Feet High and Then Descends Like a Bird, Electrifying Crowd of 150,000

At a great two-mile curve over the ocean, the aviator, Walter Brookins, achieved a great feat. He flew to a height of 6100 feet and then descended like a bird, electrifying a crowd of 150,000 people. The aviator's flight was a great success, and the crowd was very happy.

When Brookins had been in the air for thirty-six minutes, he reached the estimated altitude of 6100 feet. At this height, the aviator began to look like a small bird. The sun had been shining full when he started, but when he reached 5200 feet, forty-two minutes after he left the ground, the sun had passed behind the clouds.

At the altitude of 5650 feet, when Brookins had been in the air for forty-two minutes, it was necessary to follow the movements of the aviator. The aviator's flight was a great success, and the crowd was very happy.

roving as compared to mounting the great heights in the air. It requires a higher degree of skill and courage and a better machine.

Until he broke the record today, Brookins himself held the altitude flight record. On June 15 at Indianapolis he reached a height of 4937 feet. By this feat he broke the record established by Paulhan at Los Angeles last February, who flew the same machine to an altitude of 4250 feet. On last Wednesday afternoon, at the Rheims meet, he flew to a height of 4400 feet, which has been erroneously reported as his world altitude record. Latham rode in an Antoinette biplane.

HOW AN AMATEUR
WIRELESS
OPERATORCaught the Story
Of the Fight

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9. — Of course the talk is all of fighting and fighters since the pilgrimage to Reno, and theory piles on theory as to why big Jim Jeffries made no better showing against the giant negro. Generally it has come to be believed that Jeffries was afraid.

Now if fear loses fights in that fashion, Johnson will be badly whipped by Sam Langford should the two ever come together. Johnson is thoroughly afraid of Langford, "the bone-crushing demon," as the fight promoters had him billed. That is why the promoters cannot get the two black men together for a match, though it is the only heavyweight contest in sight that would draw anything like a "gate."

Johnson is a far larger man than Langford, but he does not dare face the smaller chap. That is why he ducks and dodges and evades when a match is talked of. It seems that in a previous contest Langford knocked the big man down twice in one round, and Johnson can't get over the act and the fear. That is why Langford is so "cocky" about challenging Johnson and offering a real money bet on the side.

It's a Different Game Now

The debate has already begun on the question: "Could Johnson have whipped Jeffries when Jeffries was in his prime?" It is the same old question that we have fussed over as to Corbett and John L. Sullivan. I am one of those who say that Johnson at Reno was a greater fighter than Jeff ever was, just as I have always argued that Corbett at New Orleans was a greater fighter than John L. at his best.

The fighting game goes ahead like everything else. The men of the ring improve their methods from year to year. Savers probably wouldn't be able to go a round with Stanley Keeler could he revisit the glimpses of the moon and bring back with him the best science he had when he fought the husband of Ada Isaacs Menken. Blows and methods have been developed that Sayers never dreamed of.

It is so with Jeffries and Johnson. The game has progressed since Jeff put the ring. Johnson has carried the science of fighting right along, while Jeffries has nothing that is new or strange. Just as the crutches and swings took the place of the old, square-shouldered, straight rights and lefts of the Jim Mace school, so now a fight is very different from what it was when Jeffries ruled the isle world. Then the long blow was still in vogue. The infighting was in its infancy.

Now we have a school of fighters that might be called the Battering Nelson school. A fight is no longer the spectacular open game a fair of a few years ago. Now it is a getting together and the delivery of short and blows and snaps and rips and lupperents. The blows are too quick for the eye, and the fight from the spectator's standpoint is power near as satisfactory as the fights of other days. But Johnson has mastered this new style of fighting and Jeffries has not. And so I say that Johnson at Reno was a greater fighter than Jeffries ever was and could have whipped the big white man at his best. However, anybody who loves argument can get all he wants of it by just starting this question.

An Omen That Went Astray

Frank Hellman of this city has brought back from Reno one of the strangest tales yet heard and one that will put a cracker on those who believe in signs and omens—the snake-eater and perverse generation that seeketh after a sign—a sign. Hellman's experience carries on the quotation, "The no sign shall they find but the sign of the Prophet Jonah." He tells his tale something like this:

"I was out at Jeff's training quarters the night before the fight. It was late and I was piking away at the wheel. Along came Jeffries and threw down a dollar on the red. I had a dollar on the black. The wheel spun and the ball dropped on the black. The dealer just tossed Jeff's coin over to me.

"Again we bet a dollar each—Jeff on the red; I on the black. Again I won. Well, sir, do you know that fourteen times straight that ball dropped black. Fourteen times Jeff's dollar was tossed over to me. On the fifteenth turn the ball dropped red, and my dollar went to Jeff. Then he stopped, as if satisfied.

"Aha!" said I to myself. "That means that Jeffries will win in the fifteenth round. I'll just put down a bet on that." Those I told the strange story to agreed with me, and right up to the fifteenth round I expected Jeff to win with a punch when the turn should at last swing from black to red. But the turn never came, and all my belief in signs and omens and hunches was gone with Jeff's lost championship and reputation."

Monkeying With a Buzz-Saw

On the morning after the fight a mild-looking man with a grouch was in a crowded restaurant in Reno. A tough waiter jostled him needlessly. Then that tough waiter put his greasy hand on the spotless clothes of the mild-looking man, whose grouch got the better of him, and he sharply told that tough waiter not to push him about with greasy hands or there would be trouble. The tough waiter sassed back and words got hotter and hotter. The tough waiter reached for two bottles.

"Just put those bottles down or you'll start something a great deal worse than that affair out in the arena," said the mild-looking man, and out of his trousers pocket he showed the butt of a gun.

The waiter put down the bottles. Then he rasped out: "I'll go and get a cannon bigger'n his, and then I'll get him."

"Now, don't go after any cannon if you expect to live through the day," advised a man at a table. "Do you know who that man is you have been roughing with?"

"Who is he?" asked the tough waiter.

"Bat Masterson."

The tough waiter did not go for his cannon, and all that day it was noted that he was singularly deferential to mild-looking strangers with grouches.

Again We Will Hear of That Book

Judge James G. Maguire, sometime Congressman and once Democratic candidate for Governor of California, is now seeking the Democratic nomination for judge of the Superior Court in this city. Already we again begin to hear whispers about the book he once wrote, "That book has been a political plague to him ever since he put it in the press. Everybody has heard of the book that Judge Maguire wrote. Few really knew what it was all about.

Somewhere there is a widespread impression that the Judge denied the infallibility of the Pope. The truth is, he did nothing of the sort, but criticized the Pope for meddling with Irish politics and gave a history of how other Popes had treated Irish efforts at liberty. The title of the work was "Ireland and the Pope, a Brief History of Papal Intrigues Against Irish Liberty From Adrian IV to Leo XIII." The book was printed by James H. Parry in 1888, and it is much sought after as a curiosity by those who collect "Californiana," because there is an idea that most of the edition was called in and destroyed.

The Judge wrote as an Irish patriot in the heat of a protest against the then famous "rescript," but every time he has run for office since men have voted against him under a vague sort of impression that he was guilty of blasphemy.

Will We Hear a Roar?

Now that the Olympic Club is well under way with its fine new building, with its finances all straightened out and prosperity looming far ahead, I am expecting every day some sort of an official roar about our biggest of big bankers, J. W. Hellman. For the club has had a dreadful peevishness about Hellman for a long time now, and the officers have been threatening to knock him just as soon as the new building project was well on its feet.

The charge is that Hellman tried to keep the club from getting its money for its new building. Just why he did this does not seem quite clear. One theory is that he wanted to get the club in his financial power so he could head off a silly movement started by some shallow brains to keep Jews out of the club membership. In any event, the club has seen a report made by Hellman against a proposed loan to the club, and it took all of William H. Crocker's ability and backing to get the money for the new building under proper terms.

In any event, Hellman is as much disliked in the club as Crocker is liked, and, as I said, there have been threats to come out with an official roar and even to expel Hellman from the club.

The Most Wonderful of All Toys

No invention is greater than the wireless telegraph, and none has been so readily adapted to amusement by the American small boy. The way the lads have adapted their weird wizardry of the air to their fun and frolic is truly amazing. They have their little wireless stations in back yards and vacant lots, and they really get messages.

One of the most expert of all the lads is young Philip Finnell, son of Attorney Bush Finnell, and grandson on his mother's side of the late Socrates Haff of your county. His parents are summering in the beautiful country back of Woodside, in San Mateo county, and there Young Finnell the other day rigged a wireless apparatus in a tall tree.

On the day of the fight at Reno the Bulletin sent off a wireless account of the fight by rounds so that steamers at sea or others anywhere might pick up the news. Sure enough, young Finnell at his instrument in the hill began to tell the people visiting his parents just how the fight was progressing, carrying it right through to the end without a break. He also caught the story of the death of Chief Justice Fuller and other bits of news, such as the baseball scores. The accuracy of his receiving was fully confirmed by the next day's papers, but those who saw the bright lad at work are still full of wonder that a boy can so completely master this almost uncanny development of electrical power.

Scarcity of Democrats

The scarcity of Democrats in San Francisco is a source of much worry to candidates of that party for nomination. So few are the Bourbons that the aspirants for office in that party find it difficult to secure the requisite number of names for their nomination petitions. Several of the candidates have been unable to get the necessary signatures up to date.

The dearth of Democrats is indicated by the fact that the candidates of that party in some instances are paying 10 cents apiece for signatures to their petitions, while the Republican tariff is but 5 cents a name.

With a dearth of Democrats has come peace and quiet, if not harmony, in that party. The Democratic State Central Committee, which resolved itself into a nominating convention, has chosen but one candidate for each office, with a single exception, the result being that, excluding the exception referred to, there will be a straight ticket in the field.

The single Democratic contest is in the Fourth Congressional district, where Robert P. Troy, brother of the redoubtable E. P. E. Troy, and otherwise known as the former secretary of the late United States Senator Stephen M. White, is running against Walter MacArthur, the labor leader, for the nomination for Representative from that district.

Many Democrats are registering as Republicans and there are so few Bourbons declaring their affiliation as such that there is a possibility of that party losing its identity. This passing of the San Francisco Democracy has given added interest to the proposed appearance of the much predicted party organ, the San Francisco Sun. That savior of the local Bourbon cause was to have made its advent tomorrow, the 11th inst., but once again the birth has been delayed, the date now forecast for the event being August 1st.

Union Labor Active

There has been much activity in Union Labor circles of this city during the past week or ten days. A meeting under the joint auspices of the Building Trades Council and the San Francisco Labor Council, assisted by the general committee of San Francisco in charge of the strike in Los Angeles, was held in the Building Trades Temple. It was largely attended, it being announced that there were 1000 persons present. It was reported that $11,000 had been raised to assist the men in Los Angeles who had walked out and that a terted city world be erected for them and their families just outside the southern metropolis itself, and maintained by contributions from the unions.

Early last week a mass meeting was held in the Building Trades Temple for the purpose of protesting against the unrestricted immigration of Asiatics and other undesirable aliens who will not assimilate with the white race. Other subjects of protest were the report of Labor Commissioner McKenzie on the Japanese question and Immigration Commissioner Hart C. North, who, it was claimed, was favoring, if not aiding, the undesirable aliens in landing. The attendance at this meeting was not large and its proceedings consisted in the main of speech making. Among the principal speakers were Mayor Charles W. Davidson of San Jose, who is also a candidate for Congress against the incumbent from the Fifth District, E. A. Hayes, and former Congressman James G. Maguire.

Still another mass meeting was held last week in the same hall, under the auspices of the newly organized San Francisco branch of the International Women's Union Label League. A feature of this meeting was a display, by stereopticon, of the union label stamps it was proposed to use. This system of union labels was declared to be a most effective weapon for the protection of union-made goods. It was claimed that the use of these labels would obviate the necessity of strikes. By demanding goods bearing these union labels, it was asserted, union labor men would drive out Chinese, Japanese, prison and sweat-shop made goods.

Joke on Johnson

When Hiram Johnson was in San Luis Obispo, during his recent canvass of the Coast counties, a clergyman came in from Cambria, a distance of thirty miles, to have a conference with the candidate of the Lincoln-Roosevelt League. The clergyman told Johnson, with much solemnity, that he had intended voting for him but that he found it would be impossible for him to do so and maintain a clear conscience.

In response to an inquiry as to the cause of this defection the minister explained that he understood Tim Sullivan, the San Francisco politician, had joined the Johnson forces, and the clergyman having recently read that Tim Sullivan was stakeholder in the Jeffries-Johnson fight he would have to withdraw his support from Hiram Johnson, as he could not give his sanction to prize-fighting, even in the most remote degree.

An attempt was made to explain to the anti-prize-fight minister that Tim Sullivan, the stakeholder, was "Dry Dollar" Sullivan of New York and not the Tim Sullivan of San Francisco, but the Cambria clergyman was not thoroughly satisfied and went home in doubt as to giving his support to Hiram Johnson.

Spalding's Candidacy

Colonel Charlie Hardy, political boss of San Diego, has been in San Francisco for some days trying to develop some action if not a boom in the fight of Anson G. Spalding, the baseball magnate, for United States Senator. Spalding has made much money as a dealer in baseball supplies and has invested $1,000,000 or more in San Diego, hence his popularity in that part of the State. Colonel Hardy was one of the managers of the Senatorial fight of U. S. Grant Jr., one of the "gilded" candidates ever handled by a combination of expert politicians. But Grant went down to defeat so complete that he has never revived his one-time Senatorial ambition.

While both Colonel Hardy and Colonel Fuller, also a San Diego political leader, have done their best to get the Spalding campaign under way, the boom they so much desired to develop has as yet failed to reverberate through the political groves of the State.

Stanton Did Not Go to Fight

The Paul Stanton party of automobile campaigners took in the fight at Reno during the trip north. Of course, Stanton himself did not go as he thought such a course would not comport with the dignity of a candidate for Governor whose home is in Los Angeles. But the other members of the party making this political tour, including Press and Publicity Agent Winfield Hogaboom, did view the contest of the heavyweights and it is said that they won a most satisfactory sum of money on the victory of the negro. They left this city feeling financially as well as politically strong and in their consequent good nature conceded that, after all, San Francisco, next to Los Angeles, is the greatest city on the Pacific Coast.

Brown Selling Cemetery Lots

Inquiring as to what had become of J. Dalziel Brown, who served eighteen months in San Quentin for his connection with the failure of the California

THE KNAVE

Safe Deposit and Trust Company, I was told that he is located in Los Angeles, where he is engaged in the cemetery lot business. No ton Wells, who had charge of the bank's Fillmore street branch under Brown, is his partner. The two men have managed to get hold of 5000 acres of land, have formed a cemetery association and are said to be meeting with success in selling lots and plots of ground in the place. A man in a position to know states that Brown and Wells have got a good start in this business and with ordinary sense and a tention to the matter should make a good living for themselves out of the venture. Brown's erstwhile associate in the defunct bank and trust company, W. J. Bartlett, is still bending all his energies to try and rehabilitate the institution. How he will fare in that proposition and with the sentence of ten years in the penitentiary from the lower court, which is now on appeal, time only can tell.

Orrin Peck's Wooden Hands

Orrin Peck, the California artist who has made a name for himself on both sides of the Atlantic by his portrait work and his paintings of flowers and scenes of brilliant sunlight, was the innocent cause for wonder and admiration on the part of an English guest at the Bohemian Club last week. Peck, who has been spending much time of late at the country home of friends in Alameda county, got his finger nails and hands very much blackened by making a liquor of which he is fond, and which he was taught to make by friends in France. Walnuts are taken, hulled and cracked and then soaked in a certain alcoholic mixture. Afterward they are put in white wine. Having occasion to visit the Bohemian Club, Peck covered his stained hands with gloves. The English visitor noticed Peck eating his meals at the club with gloves on his hands and marveled at the strange custom.

"Oh, that's easily explained," lightly remarked a friend of the Britisher who is a bit of a wag. "Peck has artificial hands and always has to cover them with gloves. He lost his hands in a terrible railroad wreck when a boy. In spite of such an awful handicap, he has been able to use his artificial hands as an artist and make a name for himself."

"Do tell! Wonderful! Almost incredible, don't you know," replied the gullible Londoner.

And he left town with his mind still unabused of at least one remarkable attainment of Peck as an artist.

Ownership of Vast Domain

Henry Miller's decision to bond the Miller & Lux Company for $5,000,000 and use the money to buy out the Lux heirs means the end of much costly litigation between him and them and the acquirement by him in absolute ownership of a vast domain at an age when most men are incapacitated for work of any kind. The Miller & Lux Company has $12,000,000 of stock issued to Miller and the heirs of Charles Lux. Miller holds a majority. It is said on the very best authority that the property has a value of $30,000,000. So he is driving a shrewd bargain with the Lux people. To what extent he is profiting only he and his advisers know. They are also the only people who know what the earning capacity of the company is today and has been during the years that have elapsed since Lux died in 1887. It has been with astonishing success that Miller has kept the earnings of the company a secret. He would never consent to sell any of the land. Had the Lux people had their way, the property would have been divided long ago. Miller is now 83 years of age. What will become of the property when he dies is a hard question to answer.

"Any man's a fool to sell land in California when he is able to hold on to it," he always been a favorite saying with Miller.

Revenge of a Greek

Here is a story about Stanford University which has just leaked out. On some of the new building work at the institution Greek inscriptions are placed on the cornices. About the time the list of these Greek letters were to be chiseled in proper form and place, the workman engaged on the job got into a serious dispute with the head foreman of some work. The quarrel was apparently patched up. But the workman felt that he had been wronged and took his own time and way to get what seemed to him the proper revenge. This he did by chiseling some words of his own in the Greek letter frieze instead of those given to him by the boss. His words, of course, were not according to Hoyle. The workman was a Greek, and in his own way he chiseled out just words of that language. All this happened about six months ago. All the work was completed and the building accepted from the contractor by the board of trustees shortly afterward. Recently a tutor of Greek and one or two students of that language were aimlessly reading the various Greek inscriptions scattered here and there when they ran across the irreverent words. It is said they were struck with the strangeness of the words, which caused an investigation. It was then that their true meaning was deciphered. Further inquiry led to the reason why they got there. They have been chiseled out.

Will Announce Engagement

There seems to be no doubt now that Miss Florence, the last and youngest of the Hopkins sisters, daughters of E. W. Hopkins, will shortly have her engagement announced to Duval Moore. Two of the sisters are married to the Taylor boys and one to a McNear. The father is several times a millionaire and got his start as a rich man because he was a nephew of Mark Hopkins, one of the big four of the Central and Southern Pacific roads. Mark Hopkins had two brothers, one Moses and the other Samuel. E. W. Hopkins was a son of the latter, and through this relationship got some of Mark Hopkins' wealth. When Moses Hopkins died in this city, E. W. Hopkins and his four daughters were given large bequests in his will. The E. W. Hopkins family's share of the original Hopkins millions no doubt would have been much larger had not the widow adopted as her son a young man who is now Timothy Hopkins of this city and later on married Edward F. Searles, a New England house interior decorator. When she died Timothy Hopkins found himself disinherited. He contested the will and is said to have obtained in a compromise $6,000,000. Searles got from his wife many millions and is still living in New England in great affluence. Many consider Searles eccentric and the question of taxes on his properties appears to be a constant bugaboo with him. At present he lives at Wingham, N. H., and he is threatening to leave there if his taxes are not reduced. Driven from Great Barrington, Mass., to Methuen, in the same state, by the action of "ungrateful people," who refused to be content with millions in gifts for schools, churches and roads; driven from Methuen by the same devices after he had spent hundreds of thousands for the community's benefit, he went to Wingham and showered gifts upon it. Now the people there are "ungratefully" trying to get more in the way of taxes. The question is to be fought out in a town meeting, and Searles himself has a slate up for the board of selectmen.

Rivalry Between Banks

Those acquainted with the situation are watching with great interest the keen rivalry between the three largest national banks in town for first place. The institutions are the Bank of California, Anglo and London-Paris, and Wells-Fargo Nevada. The two former were recently made national banks. The Hellmuths dominate the Wells-Fargo Nevada, while the Fleischackers are managing the Anglo and London-Paris. Frank B. Anderson is president of the Bank of California and is managing it for the D. O. Mills estate and a lot of prominent and rich San Franciscans who own most of its stock. Including the deposits of its out-of-town branches, the Bank of California has the largest total of deposits. Excluding these branch deposits, Wells-Fargo Nevada has the largest deposits, with the Anglo and London-Paris second. With $6,000,000 Wells-Fargo Nevada has the largest capital stock. The Bank of California, however, is shortly to increase its capital stock from $4,000,000 to $8,500,000. A strong fight for increased deposits is being made by each of the three moneyed institutions, and all sorts of wiles are being pulled for the attainment of that end. The Bank of California is buying out the San Francisco National. The latter's president, James K. Wilson, a man with a large personal following in the business community, has been taken by Wells-Fargo Nevada as one of its vice-presidents. Other moves are in contemplation.

A Few Nutty Problems

Representatives of the press waited three hours the other night for a meeting behind closed doors of a certain society to adjourn so that they could get what apparently would amount to some interesting data for a newspaper story. Every avenue of approach to the exclusive meeting was carefully guarded by locked doors. Persons came and went, but not one would give the patient scribes the least inkling as to what was being considered and debated in the inner chamber. The gathering was attended by a hundred and odd men. As the midnight hour approached the newspaper men thought patience had ceased to be a virtue and prepared a round robin. This was submitted to the sentinel on guard to be transmitted to whoever was in authority within the secret chamber. The round robin politely asked if there was any information to give to the waiting press representatives, as the hour was getting late. In due time the following type-written note was handed out:

"A large number of nutty problems was discussed, but no decision arrived at."

It might be unfair to give the name of the man whose name was signed to the note.

Why Taft Is Pleased

Mr. —, who is well known in business circles, and who is not concerned with politics in any respect, is back from an eastern trip. He brought with him one of the latest photographs of President Taft, and on the back of it, in the Taft handwriting, is a little note attesting his friendship for the recipient of the picture. The latter is a friend of the Taft family, and he tells me that the President is much concerned for the health of his wife, which is far from good. In spite of his multifarious duties, my informant says the President is more devoted than ever to his better half, seeking to cheer her up on every occasion. Not for his own sake, but for the sake of the Republican party, President Taft told my friend that he was rejoiced over the record of the late Congress in enacting much constructive legislation and in redeeming the party's pledges to the people. The gentleman says he is more than ever convinced that President Taft would like to have a seat on the United States Supreme Court bench some day.

Mrs. Longworth's Dresses

Miss Jennie Crocker is back from the Roosevelt wedding in New York, and her once contemplated trip to London to visit the Reids, their daughter, Mrs. John Ward, and the Countess of Granard, nee Mills, seems as far off as ever. Miss Crocker is said to be telling her friends of the wardrobe of Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, about which she heard considerable while east. As the story goes, many of Mrs. Longworth's recent purchases were made to her individual order in Washington, or were models from Paris ordered for her inspection before leaving home, so were entitled to free entry on their return, though her period of enforced mourning for King Edward prevented their being used during her entire visit abroad. Not even the new Mrs. Anthony Drexel, Jr., or the Viscountess Maidstone, it is the gossip of Miss Crocker and her friends, can produce such wonderful clothes as those made for the former President. Roosevelt's eldest daughter, who gave her orders for garments for each special and distinguished occasion then supposed to be awaiting her presence and regardless of cost. The women are therefore asking themselves and each other where gowns made to be worn at court balls and dinners in Buckingham palace or Dorchester house will find a proper setting during an American summer. They are answering the question by saying that Mrs. Longworth may wear some of her grand clothes at Newport in August, when she is to be entertained by Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr. and other New York friends.

Looking West for Judge

President Taft will soon have to appoint five judges for the new Interstate Commerce Court and a chief for the newly created bureau of mines. Men on this coast like Congressman W. F. Engelbright of Nevada City, Sydney Norman, a mining editor of Los Angeles, and State Mineralogist Lewis E. Aubury did considerable work in getting Congress to create the bureau of mines. In fact, California has for years been urging some such measure. Whether the President will look this way in making his appointment is not known. A lot of influential mining men on the coast favor Aubury for the place. Two Eastern men from the geological survey staff are already being urged for the office. One is E. W. Parker and the other Dr. Joseph A. Holmes. It is not only possible but very probable that in making his appointments to the Commerce Court, President Taft may give one to the Pacific Coast. California is already represented on the United States Supreme Court in the person of Justice McKenna and on the Interstate Commerce Commission by Franklin K. Lane. So some other section of the coast instead of California may get representation in the new court.

Blacklist for Legislators

Mr. Oliver H. P. Belmont, mother-in-law of the former Virginia Fair of this city, has sent to friends here some of the leaflets which the Political Equality Association, of which she is president, recently had printed denouncing by name the seven men of the New York legislature who not long ago voted against woman suffrage at Albany. In word of praise, the names of those who voted favorably are also given. It appears that these leaflets are being scattered broadcast by the thousands. Mrs. Belmont writes to her friends that she is to study the suffrage movement in London this summer. Next fall on her return home, her Political Equality Association will plan a great parade in New York City, and also a great suffrage state fair. The object of the latter, it is set forth, is to raise funds for the movement. It would seem that Mrs. Belmont has joined hands with Dr. Anna Shaw in favoring the introduction into this country of the war-like methods of their British sisters. One of these war-like methods, as indicated by the leaflets, is to have a black list of all legislators and others who are outspoken against the cause. So far as is known, Mrs. Belmont has not succeeded in getting her daughter, the Duchess of Marlborough, to espouse the suffrage movement.

Dining in Chinatown

It is quite the thing these days for the ultra Bohemian to have a dinner in Chinatown, drink rice wine and partake of a menu lasting a couple of hours, if he cares to sit that long and taste all that is set before him. The other night a party of ten had one of these Chinese dinners. The menu served can be set forth in a general way. There were dishes of stewed duck cooked without salt, roast sucking pig, force-meat balls and chicken. Then there was a dish of grilled fish, which was helped from the top side only. Then came soups of birds' nest, of mushroom, of vegetable and of sea slugs. Lastly came small bowls of rice and rice water. With each course was plenty of rice wine. Everything was served with scrupulous neatness. Cigars, pipes, cigarettes and tea concluded the meal. Some of those present declared the tea, with its delicious aroma, the best part of the meal.

Interesting Careers

I happened to see on the street the other day three former Southern Pacific men who have had interesting careers. One of them is Arthur Brown of your city, who retired from active work some years ago. It was Brown who built the two Del Monte hotels, the first one having burned down in the late eighties. Brown will be known to fame as the builder of the thirty miles of Central Pacific snowsheds, the largest work of its kind in the history of the world. Those sheds have consumed enough timber to house a city of 100,000 people. W. V. Stafford, a member of the State Board of Harbor Commissioners, and probably the most efficient member the commission ever had, is another of the trio. Stafford was formerly a conductor and then chairman of the grievance committee of the conductors' brotherhood on this coast. Before taking his present place, Stafford was state labor commissioner. Frank V. Meyers, the other member of the trio, is a practicing attorney in this city and secretary and treasurer of the state organization of electrical contractors. Meyers at one time was a locomotive engineer and then became chairman of the engineers' grievance committee. He at one time was state labor commissioner. After retiring from that position he entered upon the practice of the law and has met with success.

Gould Boys Expected West

George Jay Gould and his brother, Howard, are expected to come West late in August on the occasion of the formal opening of the Western Pacific railroad's through passenger train service. These two sons of Jay Gould, and especially the former, pay more attention to the railroad fortune of the family than the other two sons, Edwin and Frank. The latter gives it no attention to speak of. He is frequently mentioned in the cable news as being the devoted admirer of Edith Kelley, an actress, and they are said to be frequently in each other's company in Paris. He owns a racing stable and recently was credited with wishing to buy the entire stable of Edmund Picard, one of the big men on the French turf. Just at present he is said to be writing a play in collaboration with a Frenchman. Some years ago he wrote a book of poems for private circulation. Some other poetical effusions of his were not so private. They were printed in connection with the suit for breach of promise which Bessie De Voie brought against him. Edwin Gould recently offered a prize of $15,000 to the first man who produces an aeroplane with two motors and two propellers which will prove better than all machines that have been constructed up to date. Mr. Gould was the first man to realize that the machine as well as the man should receive the stimulus and attention which the offering of a prize insures.

"It is a fine sight to see a large encampment on the move, imbued with the spirit of 'divine unrest.' The children of Israel must have presented just the same spectacle when they wandered of old from well to well, for the Arab never changes. When the chief finds a suitable grazing ground he lights a fire as a signal to the rest of the tribe, who are scattered over a large stretch of desert. They gather round and pitch their tents in groups, generally in depressions to get shelter from the wind. It takes very little time to put up the tents, and then the Arab lies about and talk and drink much coffee until the spirit moves them to go on a foray or necessity forces them to shift camp again."

Kahns' Department Chiefs Are Running This Sale

AND THEY are certainly running it successfully. We never had such crowds—never made so many sales—in a single week before. Yet there is no undue excitement—no unpleasant crowding or jostling. Preparations for this event were carefully made, and the multitude of bargains are so scientifically distributed on every floor and in every aisle of this great building that thousands of women may be choosing at one time, and each have room enough and time enough to do her shopping leisurely and intelligently. In this respect—as in many others—Oakland has never seen such a sale.

This Week Our Thirty Big Departments Will Fire Another Broadside of Crowd-Bringing—Friend-Making—Business-Building Specials At the Purchasing Community

The cannonading will reverberate pleasantly, and find an answering echo in the purses of economical people. Come—if only to enjoy the sights. Follow the sale signs—or if you prefer, wander where you will. Look around as much and as long as you like, from 8:30 in the morning to closing time. Nobody will importune you to purchase. We want you to feel that you are as welcome to look as you are to buy. This sale would lose its point if you failed to carry away a pleasant impression of The Always Busy Store and its methods.

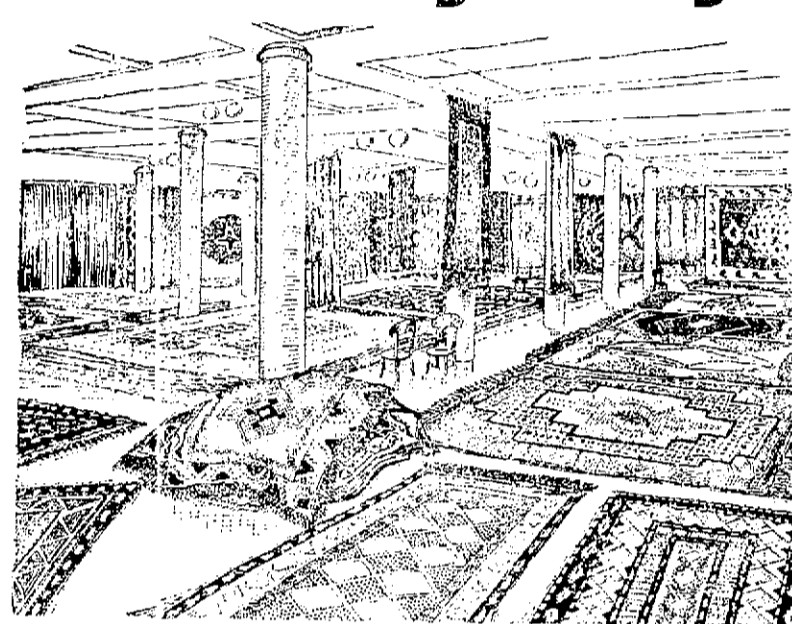

PRETTY WASH GOODS

At Prices That Assure Store-Crowding And Lively-Selling Values Are Irresistible

I T was like touching a match to gunpowder, the way my goods and buyers rushed together last week. I expected a crowd—a big crowd. But I did not expect such a vast army of customers. I really seem as if half the women in Alameda county visited my department last week—to buy goods and save money. The bargains will be just as big and numerous this week as last. The following, for example:
L. DANIEL MAGEE.

Stylish Summer Apparel For Maid and Matron At the Lowest Prices Ever Quoted For Equally Elegant and Desirable Garments

T HANK you. Last week's business, hoped for ahead of even my very great expectations. Tuesday was a record-breaker—Wednesday surpassed it—Thursday, Friday and Saturday each put Wednesday into total eclipse. But I expect to be even busier this week, for those who visited my department last week are now telling their friends and neighbors about the extraordinary bargains they secured. That means still bigger crowds—still larger business. Be sure to get your share of these unprecedented values. A. L. YEHL.

- $10.00 For This Season's Tailored Suits That Have Been Selling at $20 and $25
- $12.95 For This Season's Tailored Suits That Have Been Selling at $25 and $28.50
- $17.95 For This Season's Tailored Suits That Have Been Selling at $30.00 to $40.00

There are altogether too many styles among these suits to go into details. Suffice it to say that every suit is splendidly tailored from a stylish, serviceable fabric, and was fairly priced originally. They are offered at reduced prices simply because it is time now to cash in all summer stocks. Next season's suits may be no handsomer—next season's may be no different. But it is my rule to sell all goods in the season for which they were bought. Hence the truly gigantic price reductions I have made for this final clearance. Any woman's wardrobe will be lucky to acquire one of these suits at the prices they are now marked.

AUTOMOBILE SECTION

VAUDEVILLE STAR IS MOTOR CARS TO BE ENTHUSIASTIC ON PROMINENT AT ELKS' SESSION

"Sylvia," the Lady Chauffeur, Uses Studebaker-Garford in Her Sketch.

"Sylvia, the Lady Chauffeur," the title of a monologue from the facile pen of Edwin T. Emery, the well-known humorist, will soon be presented for the first time in San Francisco in one of the houses here of a big vaudeville circuit, the particular and dashing "Sylvia" rolling onto the stage in her Studebaker-Garford "40" touring car, which she purchased in New York City several months ago and which she carries with her on her travels.

Just who "Sylvia" is the dashing motorist refuses to tell. "That's my name," she explains. "Sylvia, the Lady Chauffeur." I sign my checks that way—the name, like Mark Twain, is incorporated and copyrighted. No amount of persuasion will elicit any further information concerning the identity of the "air automobilist."

"Sylvia's monologue is replete with figures of speech which fairly bristle with humor, the motorist of which makes anything heretofore tossed over the footlights of the vaudeville stage. Her act is staged with scenic effects quite apropos, her big touring car playing a prominent part.

Franklin Owner to Tour Lake County

H. A. Pfeiffer of Fruitvale, who recently purchased a Franklin Six, left yesterday for an extensive tour through Lake, Mendocino and Sonoma counties. He will be gone two weeks, and will en route expect to cover over 700 miles.

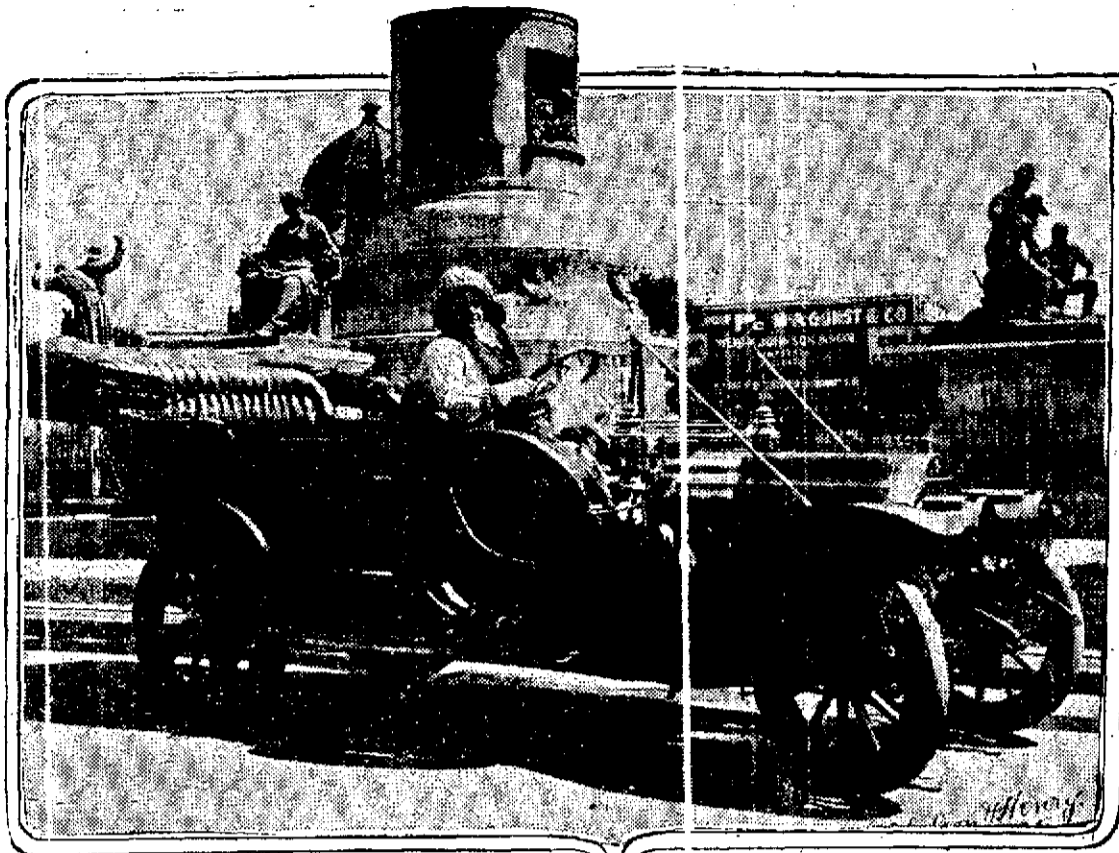

Columbia Chosen as Official Car at the Monster Gathering.

Motor cars will figure prominently in the great gathering of Elks in Detroit during the week of July 11. Hundreds of Elks who own automobiles are expected to start for Detroit from various parts of the country, and the city of Detroit is arranging for the entertainment of a record crowd of visitors.

To perfect plans for the assembly of visitors from the larger cities and towns east of Detroit, a Columbia car has been dispatched by the Elks' committee to make the run of 100 miles from Hartford, Conn., to Detroit, covering the route through Pittsfield, Albany, Utica, Syracuse, Rochester, Buffalo, Cleveland and Toledo.

Moline for Mountain Stage

Manager Holmes of the stage line that runs from Susanville, in Lassen county, Cal., to Reno, Nev., has just taken delivery of a Moline car from the Hugo Moller Auto Company for passenger service over this route. Mr. Holmes states that he has been using on the run since 1907. The car is still giving excellent service and has a reputation that extends throughout this entire section. Some months ago the car was damaged by a fire, and the manager of the stage line, who had been using it for some time, was forced to abandon it. As a consequence, the Moline car was purchased to replace it. This achievement stimulated several other makes into renewed efforts to duplicate, not just, but all have failed.

BLAME HOTEL MEN FOR HIGH PRICES

Beef Trust Lays Blame for the Present Condition at Door of Caterers.

NEW YORK, July 9.—The beef trust is turning on its accusers. It is laying at the doors of the hotel and restaurant managers of New York the responsibility for the high prices they charge for steaks, chops, roasts, etc. Representatives of the trust claim that at least two advances have been made by New York hotel and restaurant managers since the beef trust's last advance and that they are simply cheating their customers.

Thomas H. Hicks, manager of the Metropolitan Hotel Supply Company, supports the charge of the caterers. His concern is one of the largest wholesale establishments of this city. "I don't know of my own knowledge that the hotel and restaurant managers have raised their prices recently," he said today, "but I do know that there has been an advance lately in prices to wholesalers and distributors. Several months ago I was selling joints and roasts at prices that prevailed several months ago when the public clamor was loudest."

Motor Wagon Increases Business

James Whitaker of Galt, who operates a string of butcher shops throughout the San Joaquin valley and around W. H. Dwyer, has not weathered now prevalent in that part of the state very strongly emphasized. The superiority of the Chase motor wagon is a very serious problem in the meat business—especially so where the rain is long and the meat is for any length of time exposed to the heat. Because of the superior speed and reliability, however, of the Chase motor wagon, the meat business ceases to demand any serious consideration. Another reason in which the Chase motor wagon is superior to horses is in its utter disregard to temperature. The summer months in the valley make trying ordeals for any horse and many draft animals die because of the heat. This warmth, however, does not affect the Chase motor wagon, and on the longest and harshest trips the engine keeps perfectly cool.

THREATS LEAD TO ATTEMPT ON LIFE

Chinese Mother Persecuted by Tong Men Swallows Quantity of Opium.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9.—Persecuted and threatened with death once, she told the whereabouts of her daughter, who disappeared over a month ago and who, it is thought, may now be in China. Poon Shee, 344 Stockton street, wife of a wealthy Chinese merchant, attempted suicide this morning by swallowing opium. At the Central Emergency Hospital, where she was taken, she is said to be in a critical condition.

Poon Jim, her husband, who followed her to the hospital, says that the woman's sufferings which led to the attempt, and the girl, who is said to be "harmful and well educated, left her husband and came to San Francisco to live with her parents.

According to the mother, Wong Foo's husband followed her to this city and tried to persuade her to return to China. She refused and then she disappeared. Since that time emissaries of the son-in-law are said to have on several occasions visited Poon Shee at her home and to have threatened her with death unless she told where her daughter was. This the woman could not do.

At the hospital today the husband of the woman at first affirmed and then denied that those who threatened his wife belonged to the Suey Sing Tong.

MOTHER IS DISTRACTED

After worrying for weeks over the disappearance of her daughter and also the threats of the emissaries, the distracted mother decided to "do all" by taking the poison. She was discovered in an unconscious condition in her home this morning by her husband. The police were notified of the affair and will make an effort to find the missing Wong Foo and also to find the Chinese who threatened the woman with death. Poon Shee is forty-two years of age. It is feared that she will not recover.

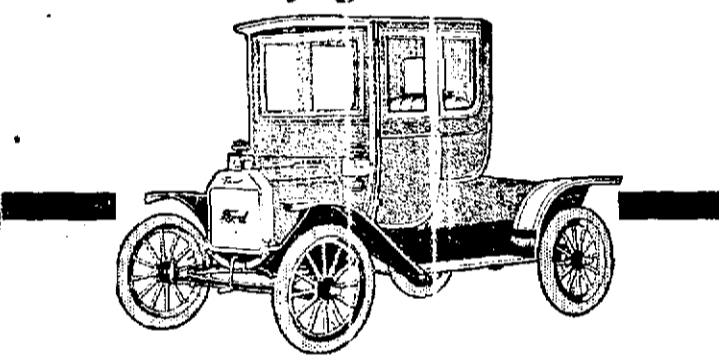

Railroad Man Buys Michigan

T. A. Cullen, one of the oldest and best known of the Southern Pacific railroad engineers, has just purchased and secured delivery of a Michigan from Kiel & Evans. Mr. Cullen spent six months looking over the entire automobile field before making his selection. Because of his vocation he is thoroughly versed, not only with the technicalities of steam engines, but also those of gas engines. His selection of a Michigan is somewhat of a tribute to the car from a standpoint of mechanical excellence, inasmuch as it was chosen after the severest of tests. Mr. Cullen intends doing considerable touring in his new car.

Cameron to Enter Vanderbilt Race

A. T. Smith, local distributor of the Cameron cars, is in receipt of information from his factory to the effect that they are making preparations to enter the Vanderbilt race next October and intend making an endeavor to keep the much-coveted cup on this side of the ocean. During recent speed trials the car has been making, according to the advice received, straightaway miles in 30, 31 and 32 seconds. While this seems almost unbelievable, it is nevertheless an actual fact. That this car will be heard from in the future is unquestioned at the works of writing.

Buying a "Ford" Is Automobile Buying With the Risk Cut Out

If prestige, if reputation, if experience, if past performance counts for anything, can serve in any way as an aid to a selection in automobile buying, then the purchase of a Ford car can feel amply protected, and have the assurance that no matter how much of a risk the buying of some cars involves, every element of chance is removed when Ford secures the decision.

The same old Ford Motor Company has been manufacturing Ford cars designed by Henry Ford, since the very earliest days of the industry. The first automobile ever seen in Detroit was a Ford, one of the first half dozen built in America was designed and built by Ford, 40,000 Ford Cars have since been built, and all have made good. There never was a Ford failure—there never was an unfilled Ford promise, and the years have built up a reputation for Ford that it would be folly to risk at this late date.

WHITE STEAM and GASOLINE CARS FOR 1911

Having disposed of our 1910 products, we now announce our steam and gasoline models for 1911.

The 1911 White Gasoline Car, like the 1910 model, is a car of moderate size and moderate power—the type which is most economical to maintain and which fully answers the requirements of the great majority of motorists.

The design of the White includes a number of desirable features which are not yet embodied in any other American car.

The QUALITY of the White, part by part, is not equaled in any other car of moderate price and is not excelled even in the highest priced cars.

The new White Steamer represents eleven years of development of a type of car which possesses many desirable qualities not found in any other automobile. We wish to direct special attention to the "Presidential pattern," 40-horse-power, seven-passenger steamer—the easiest riding and most comfortable car in the world.

CONGRESSMEN SUGGEST WAY TO WIN FAIR FOR COAST

Campaign of Publicity in Middle States, Special State Tax Levy and Other Methods Are Advised at Luncheon

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9.—A lively and enthusiastic discussion followed a luncheon today at the Palace Hotel, at which the members of the Panama-Pacific Exposition executive committee and the congressional delegates from California attended. It was a sufficiently representative company to undertake any sort of responsibility in regard to the World's fair project.

The result was an open conference in which every congressman present spoke his mind, all with words of promise for San Francisco's success, but with the warning, "Get busy without delay. New Orleans is active, and you must meet her activity." Congressman Julius Kahn, under whose auspices the exposition providing federal reorganization for the San Francisco fair was introduced at the recent session of congress, made the principal address. His counsel was directed mainly to a campaign of publicity and education, with the Mississippi valley as the central objective point, and the stirring up of the great railroads of the West to offset the influences of similar character already enjoyed in behalf of the southern city. It must be a campaign of tireless activity, he thought, but if properly conducted must result in victory for San Francisco.

SPECIAL TAX LEVY.

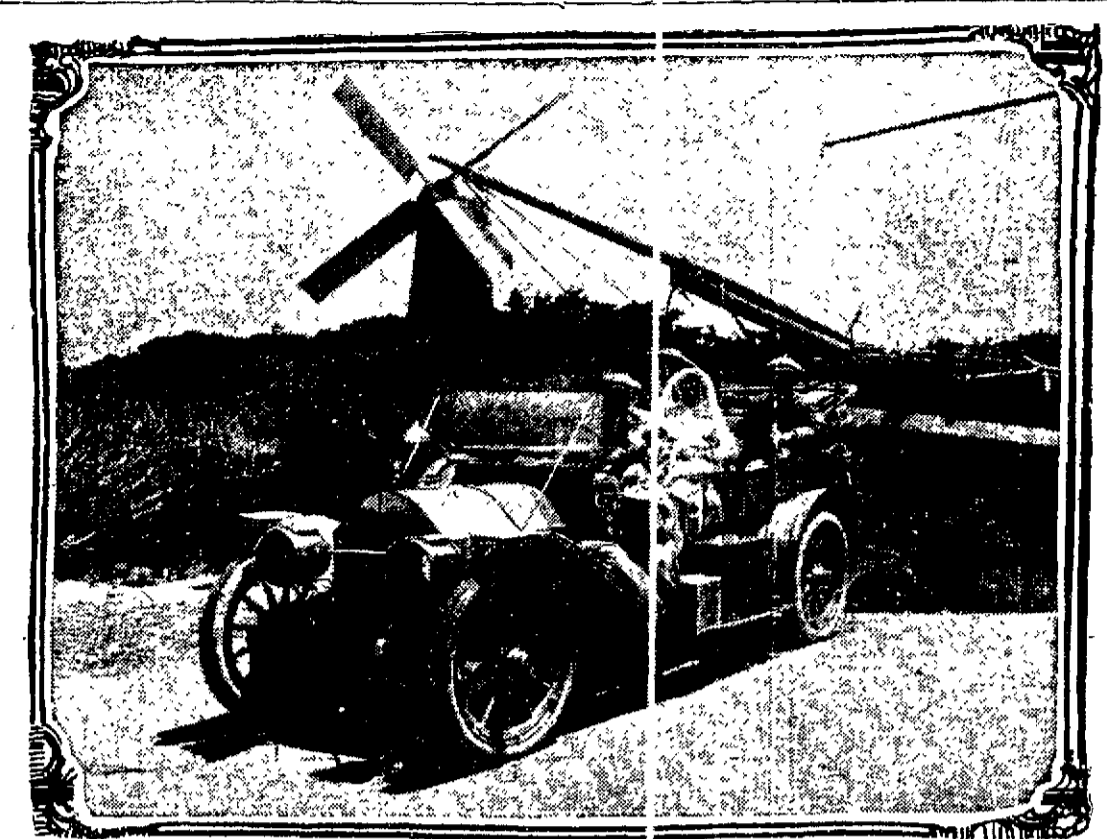

All the other congressmen agreed with Mr. Kahn, and Congressman Knowland added a suggestion for a special state tax levy of 2 cents on the $100 annually from now to the year of the exposition. Governor Gillitt approved of this idea and promised to support it, and Mayor McCarthy spoke in favor of a municipal bond issue. Mr. Zeehandelaar pledged the support, active and financial, of a united south. In this way it seemed that the money question would prove the least of San Francisco's troubles. The main topic of consideration, therefore, was the campaign of publicity that is programmed to be inaugurated immediately after the meeting of the committee on exploitation and publicity next Tuesday.

Congressman Haynes was also one of the speakers of the day, saying: "You only sure way is to make the congressmen from the Middle West believe that the majority of his constituents want San Francisco." He advised that the fight be concentrated in the Mississippi valley, where already water transportation problems had aroused interest in favor of New Orleans. He suggested an enlistment of the public press in that region, mainly by advertising and a campaign of education that would attract the people of the United States generally to the Pacific coast. "Those who can't fish must die," observed Congressman Engelbright. "Dig your $7,500,000 and we'll find the fish." He dwelt upon the importance of personal influence and thought leaders to friends of more value than printed circulars.

MONEY IS WANTED.

Congressman Knowland continued getting at the representatives from the Middle West and elsewhere through their personal friends as well as directly. "The thing of greatest importance is money," he said. "If we can get before congress and show our $7,500,000 fund complete without outside aid we'll get the fair. We'll place the limit so high that New Orleans will back out of the contest. Sixty in bad financial shape now, and I hear she is repudiating some of her bonds. Besides, the record shows

MRS. CLARK FISHER, the globe-trotter, and a party of friends in her Locomobile "30," equipped with Michelin anti-skid tires, which car she is using in making her unique trip, the longest of its kind ever undertaken by man or woman. She has already completed three-quarters of her round the world tour.

TURF GOSSIP

With the first half of the summer meeting over at Buena Vista Park the game starts on the last half with every prospect of winding up in a blaze of glory and establishing horse racing in the State of Utah on a sound and successful basis.

The management during the first part of the meeting had many petty differences and complaints of followers to straighten out, and have surmounted all difficulties and are giving patrons the best and clearest sport that is possible to give.

In protecting local patrons they barred from the track all touts and undesirable people and freed it of that element who by their nefarious calling often place the game in a bad light. In so doing they have covered solely by Indian, who shall have their own stores and shops, doctors, lawyers and other business and professional men. It is believed this would do much to break up the roving habit among the red men of Western Oklahoma and give them better opportunities in an economic way. For example, few of them raise poultry or pigs as they frequently leave home for long periods and there is no one to care for this live stock.

INDIANS TO BUILD TOWNS OF OWN

Pale Faces Will Be Bared from the Municipalities of Redmen.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., July 9.—Indian chiefs who are attending the big sun or winter dance at Big I. K. C. C. near Clinton have decided to build a number of towns in which city Indians will be permitted to live.

It is planned that these towns shall be covered solely by Indian, who shall have their own stores and shops, doctors, lawyers and other business and professional men. It is believed this would do much to break up the roving habit among the red men of Western Oklahoma and give them better opportunities in an economic way. For example, few of them raise poultry or pigs as they frequently leave home for long periods and there is no one to care for this live stock.

The Indians own plenty of land from which desirable townsites could be selected, platted and sold. Educated Indians believe the play would be successful. The Indians at the big dance have also decided to hold an Indian fair this fall, probably at Clinton, and have associated a full set of officers for the association formed.

J. W. Strongheart, grandeur of Sitting Bull, is advocating a reform among the Indians of Western Oklahoma. He says more religion and less politics is needed in the Indian mind, and schools and churches that the money donated by charity is not properly applied. He says some of the ministers in order to secure more money from the East state that their churches are attended by half-raided savages carrying guns and wearing spurs and that the ministers paint a pitiful picture of the dire needs of their Indian charges. Strongheart says this is a gross misrepresentation, as many of the Indians are prosperous and have bank accounts, but that few of them will attend church because of these misrepresentations.

GOTHAM TO TEACH BUGOLOGY COURSE

Diseases That Are Carried on Wings Will Be Shown to New Yorkers

NEW YORK, July 9.—The New York Zoological Society, with the assistance of Director Hornaday and Curator Dillman of the Bronx Zoological Park, has started a campaign to teach residents of New York the importance of taking proper precautions against disease-bearing insects and to instruct them in the economic value of certain other insects.

A large collection has already been gathered and in a few weeks it will be complete.

A few days ago a consignment of giant roving locusts arrived at the Zoo from the tropics. These locusts are very destructive to crops and vegetation in tropical countries. A cabinet containing the insects which prey upon these giant locusts will be put in the collection and the placards will describe the habits of the two species.

Eight or ten luminous beetles from South Africa are also on their way to the Zoo. But the most important of the insect collection will consist of glass cases and tanks containing the larvae of those insects which breed in stagnant pools and which are a menace to health. Besides each of the cases will be others containing either the larvae or the mature insects which devour the injurious insects.

In two cases by side, will be shown the larvae of mosquito and those of the dragon fly, the natural enemy of the mosquito. A placard will explain the dragon fly's food upon the mosquito to larvae as soon as the latter reach the stage of "wigglers."

Steamer Hits Log; Propeller Damaged
SAN FRANCISCO, July 9.—The steamer Klamath, which will arrive here Monday from Portland, met with an accident while in the Columbia river. A submerged log struck her propeller and damaged several blades, forcing her to put in drydock at Portland for several days in order to have a new one made. The wireless which was received today from the Klamath Mar. then China, which left here for the Orient at 1 o'clock on the 6th, stated that on the 8th they were 816 miles from San Francisco and all was well. A wireless was also received from the Klamath Mar. then China, which left here for the Orient at 1 o'clock on the 6th, stating that at 8 p. m. on the 8th she was 816 miles from San Francisco and all was well. The steamer was hit by a log in the northwest, weather clear and smooth sea.

Charley T. Wins the Free-for-All Trot

The Park Amateur Driving Club held a matinee yesterday at the Stadium speedway.

The weather was more too good, but notwithstanding, a good card of two races was run off before a small crowd.

As an opener for the day H. Boyle drove Blodan an exhibition mile, covering the distance in 2:24.

The first number on the program was a two-horse race for 2-year-old pacers, in which D. B. Hoffman's Bullock was victorious in straight heats over H. Boyle's Zee Bell.

The free-for-all trot was the feature of the card and was won by Charley T. in straight heats over H. Boyle's Zee Bell.

A race for class A trotters was the closest race of the day and required four heats to result. Mike Kelly was a winner. Allington's horse, who the race by winning the first and fourth heats. Lady Washington and H. Boyle's each took one of the other heats. In the last heat Mike Kelly took a long early lead.

The class A pace was a close race for the first two heats. It was clearly between Blodan and Little Medium, each taking a heat. Mike Kelly and H. Boyle's each took one of the other heats. In the last heat Mike Kelly took a long early lead.

Harness Men Will Race at Concord

The San Francisco Driving Club will hold a race meet today on the Concord track, that has created a great deal of interest.

Four races have been arranged and the horses so classified that the best of material racing can be expected.

Arrangements for a special train have been made, to leave at 9 o'clock this morning, and a large crowd of enthusiasts will make the trip from this city to witness the sport. A number of outside spectators who are interested in harness racing will go up with the local horsemen.

Uses Pick and Lake Disappears Suddenly

SANTA ROSA, July 9.—Santa Rosa's Venetian lake is but a memory now, for some time last night J. M. Jones, the property owner who obtained a temporary injunction last week, enjoined the pick and shovel work.

The affair caused considerable interest when it was seen that the water had gone down and that boating and swimming could not be enjoyed, especially after the Venetian Club had held a meeting and planned for some improvements along the banks of the lake. It was soon learned that Jones' counsel had obtained an order from Judge Howell, in view of the injunction previously granted for the removal of the dam, or a portion of it, so as to prevent the water from lodging against the shore line of Jones' property, and that Jones was not acting in opposition to the law. A notice of appeal to the Supreme Court has been filed. It is possible that a suit to condemn the strip of land along Jones' property will be commenced.

"Fried Potato King" Wins Filled Purse

PARIS, July 9.—M. Charles is a proud man, for he has been crowned "Fried Potato King" of Baguette, and presented with a purse of silver and a medal.

Baguette commissaires declare that whoever had not tasted the fried potatoes, Baguette knew nothing of the joys of life.

Forty-five flat-topped steaks were surrounded by dozens of leaves when in the place. Each man carried a large purple umbrella because it was raining.

Ear Is Severed From Head by Dried Hides
Damaged Vessel To Go to Drydock

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9.—A peculiar accident happened to Michael Bruzese, who is employed with the Fisher company's warehouse, today. While carrying a large roll of dried hides along the pavement the bundle dropped, rebounded and struck Bruzese on the left side of the head, completely severing his ear. Picking up his afflicted member he hurried to the Fisher Emergency hospital, where Dr. Connor stitched the severed ear back to Bruzese's head. Bruzese lives at 1320 Kearny street.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9.—The Monticello company's steamer Napa Valley, which ran into the concrete dock at Washington street Tuesday, July 5, smashing her prow, will go to the Union Iron Works drydock Monday morning to be repaired. Although her prow is ripped open some four feet from the front, the little steamer has been continually in service since the accident, as all the general cargo was about five feet above the water line. The damage to the steamer is estimated at about $500.

PLAN CELEBRATION OF BATTLE FALL

French Colony About the Bay Will Gather in Piedmont July 14

As arrangements are being made by a committee of the active members of the French colony of the bay cities to hold a fitting celebration on next Wednesday, the 14th commemorating the fall of the Bastille. If the plans of the committee are carried out, the celebration will take place at Piedmont Park with an afternoon spent in a social gathering at the park, followed in the evening by a grand ball at the Piedmont Clubhouse at 8 o'clock. Patriotic songs will be one of the features of the evening interspersed by a number of talks by different members of the colony and followed at the close possibly by dancing. Considerable interest in the event has been met by those who are trying to make the celebration a memorable one in French circles in this vicinity and it is the ambition to make it an annual affair if it is repeated undiminished or successful. The anniversary of the fall of the Bastille is one of national celebration in France and one which the French people look forward to with a great deal of expectation. It is the public observance of the day that the French will serve to keep alive this interest in their national holidays and at the same time afford a medium of bringing the people closer together.

and prospects of San Francisco thirty years ago. There were no great public improvements in the heart of the metropolis and none of any consequence on its water front contemplated at that time the future outlook was gloomy in the extreme. What are the conditions and prospects in Oak-mainland terminal of four trans-continental railroads. It is the terminal also of an electric railroad system whose ramifications are just beginning to unfold and which is already committed to the improvements. The other railroad corporations are planning corresponding expenditures for similar purposes. The municipal-

It has itself taken the initiative toward commercial improvements on the water front which will involve an ultimate expenditure of at least $25,000,000. Oakland harbor has a large commerce already. It is growing by leaps and bounds. It is concentrated near the lower end of the main business thoroughfare, Broadway. The principal municipal water front improvements are to be built at once in the territory contiguous to it. Municipal and private wharves already existing contiguous to it are doing a big commercial business. The tracks of two continental railroads serve the territory tributary to it. The Panama canal will be completed in five years and the increased commerce which it will develop will make a tremendous demand on Oakland harbor's facilities for the accommodation of shipping. What is going to be the reasonable effect on property values on Lower Broadway and all along the water side territory, east and south side territory east and west of it within the next five west of it within the next five years? is a pertinent question to ask and one which the shrewd and far-sighted investor is sure to ask himself. If San Francisco property along the lower reaches of its main business thoroughfare could advance 1000 per cent in twenty-five or thirty years under the slow, ordinary conditions of municipal growth, what ought to be the effect on south side property values within the next decade? Doubtless some realty investors are beginning to raminate over the possibilities, and the in-

Broadway corner lots seems to be the first indication of an awakening to the real conditions, for the buyer, it is understood, contemplates clearing the property of the worthless structure now encumbering it and putting up a substantial modern business structure on the site.

Speculators Are Picking Up Land; Waterfront Recla- mation for Sites.

RECLAIMING TIDE LAND.
The West Berkeley factory waterfront continues the scene of considerable activity. Work on the $10,000 bulkhead for the Monarch Oil Company at the foot of the pier is being hurriedly completed toward completion. Over a block of land has been inclosed by a bulkhead and a channel is being dredged on the bay side to enable the vessels to approach for landing. The inclosed land is to be the site of a new addition to the operations of the big plant planned by the Monarch Company, the total cost of the

More than $1,500,000 will be expended by the Pullman Company in the establishment of the big car shops which are being built at the new plant. It is known as Walls addition, between Albany and Richmond, and which is soon to be known as the Pullman plant.

The shops are located between the Southern Pacific and the Santa Fe railroads, with spur tracks from each line. The site covers about 200 acres, of which some twenty-five acres of ground, and it is understood that an option is held on the remaining 175 acres, which will be used by the company for additional shops, a truck yard and a lumber yard. The site is well watered and has a large number of frame buildings and dwellings have already been erected. The agents for the new town report a good demand for the new homes and a very early expectation of a marvelous growth.

Suburban lines is progressing rapidly, the Ninth street line having been completed. Through West Berkeley into the city of Oakland, the new line is being completed in the Northbrae tract is nearly completed, the big steam shovel being employed in the excavation for the laying of the track. The track as far as the cut has been laid and is being ballasted while a new station is being built on the new avenue up the Berryman grade in readiness for the more rapid transportation.

Building has been good this week, although the number of new permits is small. The report of Building Inspectors for the week ending June 1st shows that 162 permits were granted during the thirty days, and that the amount of work authorized was valued at $1,000,000. The number of permits granted for June last amounted to 150, and the value of the work

The Realty Syndicate is having an odd-time clearance sale of their miscellaneous Piedmont lots. It is a sale similar to the annual clean-ups that are held by the syndicate every year at the Island in coming years. It comes once in a while, and it happens to be buying and selling time here about 1906.

"We have made no aggressive efforts to dispose of these miscellaneous lots because we have been busy with our other properties," said Nat M. Crossley yesterday. "The result is that, with little exception, the expenses of holding them have been built up, and the values of all our lots have increased. Now, however, we are experiencing a business boom in the community to be reckoned with. The Oakland Traction Company is investing substantially in the city, and we cannot afford to hold these lots unimproved to the detriment of Piedmont."

There are being three 300 lots to be sold, and the syndicate expects the popularity of Piedmont at least 1,000 people.

Of course, continued Mr. Crossley, "the price has to be set low enough, and in order to do this we have priced them as low as $25 and $30 a foot, or even less." He added that the reason for the low prices was that they were for Piedmont lot buyers on easy terms—in fact, we can erect a fine house on one lot and sell the lot for a little over $1000 down.

Facts, Not Fancies

Within the past five years any number of subdivisions have gone on the market at the prices for which Rock Ridge Place is selling today—twenty to thirty dollars a foot. In every case where these properties have been well situated and protected by adequate restrictions the original buyers have made enormous profits.

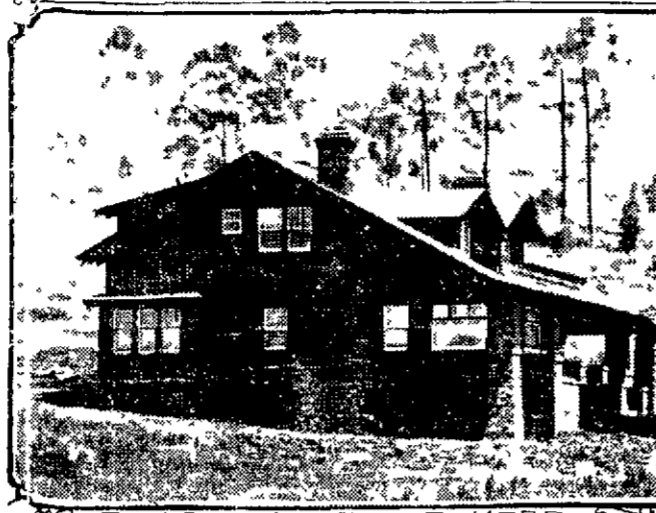

Test it out. Everyone is familiar with what has happened in Claremont, Fairview Park, Inwood Park, the City tract, Berry Bangs and Piedmont. The history of these properties has shown a profit all the way from one hundred to three hundred per cent within the last five years. And yet all these subdivisions were placed on the market at practically the same time, each in competition with the other and with numerous cheaper tracts which had joined them, all tending to keep values down.

Absolutely the reverse of the case with Rock Ridge Place. The original prices in this beautiful property are the same as those of all the other tracts five years ago, but other conditions are vastly different. All the other hill properties, from North at the extreme northern limit of Berkeley, to the Crocker tract the furthest section of Piedmont have been sold off. Anyone who buys in these districts today must buy at a resale, paying from $70 to $100 a foot.

We are understating the facts when we say that Rock Ridge Place will repeat the financial success of the highest class residence parks on this side of the bay. Rock Ridge Place has no competition, for there is nothing of its kind selling at these same prices in the bay region. Not at any price.

We predict that the Rock Ridge Properties will be selling at $120 a foot while lots of similar size in Claremont and Piedmont are still bringing $100. Yet Rock Ridge can be had today for from a third to a half of the prices in either of these districts. Not a we alone in our prophecy. This has been the verdict of practically everyone who has seen the Rock Ridge Properties, as our splendid list of buyers to date evidences.

To reach Rock Ridge Place take the College Avenue car to Lawton Avenue and walk one block east on Broadway.

DEALERS BUY TOO

Many Real Estate Men Now Own Lots in Rock Ridge Park.

A significant fact in the history of the Rock Ridge properties is the number of real estate men who have bought lots in one of the subdivisions. With this so many of the various tracts it speaks well for the desirability of a property when an agent buys in his own territory. It is also a compliment to the property which means that the agent is satisfied with what he is selling. In the case of the Rock Ridge properties, the fact that many real estate men have bought lots in the district is a strong indication of the value of the property.

Now For Paths

Short Cuts Soon to Be Constructed in Rock Ridge Park

Man's natural liking for short cuts may soon be indulged in Rock Ridge Park. The paths which are to be cut through from one street to another where such a cut off will be a convenience to the residents are to be constructed at once. Since they have been left for them between certain lots.

Porous stone steps will be put in where the paths on the hillsides and gravel walks along the edges of the lots. The first paths to be built will be West from the Short Cut and to the Main Road.

and they are not to be built by the Rock Ridge Properties, but by the owners of the lots on either side of the paths.

Country Club Approves

The following letter has been received by the Layman Real Estate Company:

The Country Club has approved the Rock Ridge properties as a desirable location for a new golf course. The club has been very much interested in the property and has been very much impressed with the quality of the land.

Take an hour today

- Take your wife or a friend or go alone, but GO to Rock Ridge Place.
- The magnificence of the property, its situation in an exclusive district surrounded by the homes of millionaires, its improvements finished and under way, will make you want to live there.
- Then remember what we have told you about values—prices in other tracts five years ago and now. Rock Ridge Place sells today at from $20 to $30 a foot.
- Visit this property today, and you will reap the profits in so-called "five years hence."
- You cannot see Rock Ridge and not buy.
